Quake Rips Iran; 4,000 Likely Dead

Times News Services

TEHRAN — A cataclysmic earthquake struck Southern Iran today, levelling the crude adobe farming huts in dozens of villages and burying thousands of people in the rubble. A witness said it hit "like the end of the world on judgment day."

Manouchet Pirouz, governor-general of Fars province where the earthquake struck along a 250-mile long area, said between 2,000 and 4,000 persons were killed and perhaps more. The area is about 610 miles south of Terhran.

(In Rockville, Md., the U.S. national earthquake information centre said the quake registered 7.0 on the open-ended Richter scale but witnesses from the area said the quake had an intensity measure of 9.5, which would be one of the heaviest on record.)

Helicopter rescue teams flew to the area and began pulling bodies from beneath the debris. The Shah of Iran ordered six army planes to the area and sent his brother, Prince Mahmoud Reza, to the province to assist in relief operations.

"We saw a woman with two of her children in her arms being pulled out dead from under rubble," a witness said. "There was even a woman who had just delivered a child. It was a gruesome sight."

Officials said most of the dead were women and children.

The quake struck at 5:37 a.m. local time.

Dust columns rose from the villages of Thir and Karzin, near the quake centre. The surrounding mountains apparently were still sliding, officials reported after viewing the scene from the air.

"The earthquake was so devastating and has levelled so many homes — in as many as 30 villages —that it will take days to find out the death toll," Gov. Pirouz said.

Reports reaching Tehran indicated most of the victims were women and children caught in their primitive mud-brick houses. Many of the men were apparently en route to the fields when the quake struck.

Iran's last catastrophic quake was the one in the eastern part of the country in 1968. Another in 1962 killed more than 15,000 persons around Qazvin, northwest of Tehran.

The region is mainly agricultural. After four years of drought, it recently suffered a record snowfall that buried farmers and their cattle in drifts of up to 20 feet.

Tremors from the earthquake reached British Columbia, but only just.

A seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on West Saanich Road said today a "faint seismic trace" was recorded here about 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

McCoy Led to Arraignment

Hijack Money Found

Times News Service

The FBI today announced recovery of $499,970 in the home of a sky-diving college student held in the hijacking of a United Air Lines jet last week.

The disclosure came in a list submitted by the FBI to the U.S. magistrate on the results of a Sunday search of the Provo, Utah, home of Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

In a second case in San Diego a man tried unsuccessfully to pull off a hijacking Sunday, making ransom and parachute demands similar to those used earlier by the Colorado hijacker.

UNARMED

Arrested in San Diego was a man identified as Stanley Harlan Speck, 31, of San Francisco, who was captured less than an hour after a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 was ordered by a hijacker to set down at Lindbergh Field here.

Speck, nabbed by federal agents as he stepped off the plane, was booked for investigation of air piracy and interfering with a flight crew.

Smith . . . 'No Radio, No Nothing'

'JUST LIKE VIKINGS'

TSAWWASSEN (CP) — A tiny styrofoam sailboat that represents a $236 investment for Laing Smith, 27, of Ladner, set off from near this lower mainland ferry terminal Saturday on what Smith plans as a round-the-world cruise.

The departure, delayed from earlier in the day by 25-knot winds around the B.C. ferry causeway, started Smith on a voyage which he expects will take 2½ years.

His 11½-foot craft weighs less than 100 pounds fully loaded and he claims it's virtually unsinkable, although the furthest he had been in the past is Sooke.

"I've got no radio, no nothing," Smith said. "This will be strictly Viking style, although I'm smart enough to take a compass along.

"I'll mostly be living on seafood all the way, but I've got emergency rations for 40 days."

He intends to stay close to shorelines where possible, heading up the B.C. coast, along the Aleutian Islands, down the Asian coast, around India and Africa, up to Europe, across the Atlantic and around South America back to Vancouver. There have been no reports on his present position.

B-52s Make Deepest Raid

Times News Services

United States B-52 bombers returned to the air war over North Vietnam today for the first time in more than four years and hit targets around the big coastal city of Vinh, 145 miles northwest of the so-called demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam. (See also Page 2.)

It was the deepest penetration of North Vietnam ever made by B-52s, the biggest U.S. bombers.

U.S. planes have made 225 bombing strikes on North Vietnam since last Thursday.

A U.S. military spokesman said the 225 strikes in the north were conducted on airfields, "airfield activity," anti-aircraft artillery and missile sites, roads, bridges and storage sites.

The pilots encountered heavy ground fire, including 50 North Vietnamese surface-to-air missiles seen set off, he said. But they reported touching off many explosions on the ground.

They also reported long lines of tanks, supply trucks and more and more anti-aircraft guns and missile launchers strung out along Highway 1 north of the DMZ.

Military sources said the B-52 strikes were ordered personally by President Nixon as part of the retaliatory air strikes against the invasion into Quang Tri province in the extreme northeastern section of South Vietnam. Monsoon rain and clouds prevented fighter-bombers from hitting the target areas today.

South Vietnam's commander on the northern front, Lt.-Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, said his forces had crushed the spearhead of the 12-day Communist offensive across the DMZ and turned the tide of battle.

But there was no letup in the North Vietnamese attack north of Saigon and the South Vietnamese command ordered another 20,000 troops into the battle for An Loc, 56 miles north of the capital.

Despite Lam's hopeful assessment, Associated Press correspondent Richard Pyle reported from the front that North Vietnamese troops made their closest penetration toward Quang Tri City, 19 miles below the DMZ, moving to within a mile northwest of the provincial capital before they were stopped. The Communist company of 100 or more troops suffered an es-

CTV CREW SUSPENDED

MONTREAL (CP) — Nearly 700 CBC radio and television technicians were locked off their jobs today because of failure to provide coverage of Sunday night's National Hockey League game between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

At the same time, a 21-man TV crew for CFCF-TV, affiliated with the CTV network, have been suspended, for walking off their jobs Sunday night in sympathy with their CBC counterparts. (Earlier story on Page 12.)

Queen Real Shocker

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Times warned Queen Elizabeth of probable shocks during her state visit to France next month.

A survey by the paper of gossip that has appeared about her over the years in the French press showed she had been pregnant 92 times, suffered 149 accidents, had nine miscarriages and gone on the pill 11 times.

That's not all:

She has abdicated 63 times and been on the point of breaking up with her husband Prince Philip, 73 times.

She has been rude to the Queen of Iran 11 times, to Princess Grace of Monaco six times and to Queen Fabiola of Belgium twice.

The study said the French press had reported her on the verge of a nervous breakdown 32 times, afflicted by 43 unhappy nights and 27 nightmares. There have been 27 attempts on her life, but her top score in French headlines went to her relationship with brother-in-law Lord Snowdon: She's reported to have ejected from court 151 times.

Quebec Unions Call Massive Strike Tuesday

MONTEAL (CP) — The 210,000 Quebec public service workers represented by a common front of three union federations will go out on strike for an undetermined duration beginning Tueday morning, the president of the Quebec Teachers' Corp., announced today.

In announcing the strike, Yvon Charbonneau said the union federations will not respect injunctions the government has obtained to keep workers in essential services on the job.

The strategy committee of the common front, made up of the QTC, the Quebec Federation of Labor and the Confederation of National Trade Unions, will review the situation each day of the strike, he said.

The common front, which represents civil servants and other public servants such as teachers, liquor board employees and hospital workers, staged the first general strike in an effort to back their demands in contract negotiations with the provincial government.

Talks between the unions and the government broke off last Wednesday after Jean-Paul L'Allier, civil service minister, refused a union request that he take part in the talks personally.

Meanwhile negotiations between management and representatives of 3,750 outside workers in Metropolitan Toronto broke down Sunday night and a strike began at 7 a.m. today.

The strike halted garbage collection in the city. Disposal of refuse collected in Metropolitan Toronto's five boroughs also was stopped.

HOSTAGE DEAD

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Oberdan Sallustro, kidnapped Fiat car-company executive, has been found shot to death, Argentine police sources said today.

Sallustro, 57, was kidnapped almost three weeks ago as he was leaving his suburban home.

He was seized by the Trotskyist People's Revolutionary Army which last year kidnapped the honorary British consul in Rosario, Argentina, Stanley Sylvester.

The sources said Sallustro was apparently shot by his Marxist guerrilla kidnappers when police closed in on a "people's prison" in a working district of the city where he was being held.

IRA Making Preparations To Hold Own Election

Times News Services

LONDONDERRY — Roman Catholics in the Bogside, Creggan and Brandywell strongholds of Londonderry began preparations for their own "general election" today following new hard-line statements by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

IRA leaders called a rare news conference Sunday to announce their plans for an election. They claimed they had the solid support of the Catholic people of the city for their administrative proposals and for a continued military campaign against the British Army in Northern Ireland.

In Belfast, the Roman Catholic Civil Rights Movement today gave Britain until the end of April to meet its demands or face large-scale "non-violent opposition."

A spokesman Kevin McCorry, told a news conference the organization would consider defying a British ban on marches and resume the demonstrations that often have led to bloody confrontations during nearly three years of violence here.

Meanwhile, William Whitelaw, the new secretary of state for Northern Ireland, ruled out any possibility of talks with the IRA.

He said he could not "agree to talk to those who insist on trying to achieve their ends by violence."

Some 30 Catholic priests Sunday made a call from the pulpit for "peace, reconciliation, negotiation and discussion."

Whitest April on Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — As much as six inches of snow fell on elevated parts of Vancouver late Saturday and early Sunday, covering spring flowers and making this the snowiest April on record.

The weather office at Vancouver International airport recorded 1.4 inches of snow that fell at times in near-blizzard conditions.

The previous record for all of April was 0.9 inches, set in 1955.

The snow accompanied unseasonably cold weather which has resulted in record low temperatures across British Columbia.

The overnight lows Sunday slumped to 28 at Penticton and a chilly 25 at Kelowna under clear skies.

A new storm, moving down from Alaska, threatens to dump a mixture of rain and snow on the Greater Victoria area tonight.

Chief weather officer in Victoria, Allan McQuarrie, said most of the storm is expected to hit further south but described Victoria's position as "vulnerable."

On the other side of the country many Nova Scotians were digging out in the wake of a weekend storm that dumped between five and 15 inches of snow across the province and all but paralysed road traffic.

The weather office said skies should clear throughout the Atlantic region later today but another disturbance from the central United States is expected to bring more snow and rain to the district Tuesday night.

RCMP urged motorists to stay off highways.

Another storm whipped through central Alberta early Sunday, stalling traffic with up to four inches of snow.

The storm extended from Leduc, just south of Edmonton, to Olds, 45 miles north of Calgary, and reached its peak in the Red Deer-Innisfail area.

RCMP said visibility was to near zero and country roads east and west of Red Deer were blocked during the storm's 3½-hour thrust through the district. Light snow was still falling today but highway driving lanes were open.

They're Playing Tennis in Saigon

By PETER OSNOS
The Washington Post
An Analysis

SAIGON — In Quang Tri province Saturday, some 50,000 North Vietnamese and government troops battled amidst the corpses of fellow soldiers, the debris of villages now deserted and the wreckage of tanks, artillery and warplanes.

In Saigon, the Davis Cup international tennis matches were in their second day at the Cercle Sportif. Japan beat South Vietnam, 3-2.

North Vietnam's 10-day-old countrywide offensive is already assured a major place in the military history of the Indochina war but its impact on most of South Vietnam's 15 million people is only beginning to be felt.

In its first phase, there has been an important difference between the Communists' unfolding offensive of April, 1972, and the last turning point of the war, the Tet lunar new year offensive of 1968.

This time, for large areas of the country the offensive is still something to hear and read about and worry over, nothing more. After a decade of war, that kind of fear and confusion are a matter of routine.

In the opening days of the 1968 enemy drive, the Communists attacked virtually every district town and provincial capital in South Vietnam, seizing however briefly a number of cities and storming to the grounds of the United States embassy, a stunning if only symbolic gesture.

So far this time, the fighting has been mostly near the borders, just over the Demilitarized Zone and adjacent to Communist-held or contested areas of Laos and Cambodia. There are villages and district towns involved but, except for the refugee camps in the far north, their populations are small.

None of South Vietnam's largest cities has been attacked, even Hue where the threat is thought to be greatest. Indeed, Saigon has been quieter than usual, a fact that can be both reassuring and unnerving.

In 1968, most of the fighting was done by southern-born Viet Cong, local guerrillas organized into battalions and commando units. North Vietnamese divisions were kept in secondary roles and held in the background to give credence to the claim that a general uprising, a home-grown insurrection, was under way.

VIET CONG QUIET

This time the Viet Cong have yet to be heard from in any significant way, except in the Mekong delta. There, the incidents — the overrunning of militia outposts, the mining of bridges, the shelling of district military compounds — represent a high point of the usual types of activity rather than an all-out offensive.

To do the fighting, Hanoi has dispatched more than 100,000 regular troops, backed by some of the most sophisticated and deadly weaponry available for conventional large battles with American-supported South Vietnamese.

"If you compare it to what he (the enemy) did in 1968," a senior U.S. commander said last week in an interview, "he had a strong guerrilla force then, strong cadre in an awful lot of the south. They were a source of manpower, intelligence, food.

If it can be said that the Tet offensive of 1968 came largely from within, then it can also be said that the April offensive of 1972 comes largely from without.

In a way, the South Vietnamese government may benefit, at least temporarily, by what has been widely portrayed here, as it has been in Washington, as a massive invasion of the South by the North.

Such opposition stalwarts as Sen. Vu Van Mau, leader of the militant Buddhists in the senate, have condemned the North Vietnamese in the strongest possible terms.

The An Quang Pagoda of the militant Buddhists, the most important non-communist opposition political factor in the country, has not officially commented on the fighting, but Sen. Mau is a representative spokesman. It has also been observed that some monks have been cooperating with authorities in Hue to help refugees.

UNITED RESPONSE

The senate and the lower house, notable normally for their tractiousness, issued a joint statement calling on the people to give "sold support to the army in crushing the invasion."

The surge of public sentiment, political analysts said, is not to be mistaken for a show of support for the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

One of the very few opposition figures who has spoken out, Nguyen Huu Chung, a member of the lower house, wrote an article in an anti-government newspaper criticizing Thieu and at the same time expressing the bitterness and frustration of many Vietnamese who believe the fighting is fostered by the superpowers.

"Thousands of Vietnamese soldiers of this side and the other side are fallen because of Mr. Thieu. Even if the other side wins this battle and Thieu is sacrificed the other side cannot gain a victory," he wrote.

timated 40 to 50 men killed, officers said.

Meanwhile, the United States appears to be preparing substantial new buildups of its air and sea power in Southeast Asia in response to the North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam.

Sources Sunday said two more aircraft carriers, the Midway and Saratoga, are hurriedly preparing for departure to the Far East, and three or four squadrons of F-4 Phantom fighter-bombers are on alert for possible flight to Southeast Asia.

President Nixon has sent United States allies in Asia a secret diplomatic message assuring them he will not allow the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam to succeed, the Chicago Sun Times reports.

The newspaper also reports that a major military announcement would be made today either in Washington or Saigon.

. . . HIJACK

He was found to be unarmed, authorities said.

A casual conversation with a friend, a worried sister-in-law and a note hidden by a stewardess provided the key evidence which led to the arrest of McCoy.

The tip which led agents to McCoy was provided by Robert Van Ieperen, a "close acquaintance" of the suspect who is a Utah Highway patrolman living in Salt Lake City.

"Approximately three weeks to one month ago, McCoy told Ieperen it would be possible for someone to hijack a plane and get away with it by carrying his own parachute on the plane and that if he were to hijack a plane he would demand at least $500,000," the complaint said.

SISTER-IN-LAW

The highway patrolman also told FBI investigators that McCoy's sister-in-law, who was not identified by name, telephoned him at approximately 9:30 last Friday, while the hijacking was in progress.

She asked "if McCoy was on a mission of some sort."

About two hours later some 15 minutes after the hijacker bailed out with a half million dollars in ransom over Provo — the sister-in-law phoned Ieperen again.

The complaint said she told him McCoy was not home and that "she was 'scared to death' as McCoy had tried to get her to help him on a hijacking."

The FBI also relied on a handwritten note "that stewardess Diane Surdam kept instead of returning to the hijacker with his other notes and flight instructions as he had ordered.

WRITING SAME

The printed note, which read: "Everybody off now except stewardess — they stay put. Get the hell off the GD (ground)!! Be quick about it — use this runway," was compared by an FBI expert with McCoy's handwriting on his army personnel papers.

Palmer Tunstall, the FBI document examiner, said the note's printing was "identical with and written by the same person" as the army records.

William Coggin, a plane passenger and San Quentin convict who was ordered by the hijacker to carry the ransom money and four parachutes aboard the plane, identified McCoy's picture as that of the hijacker, the complaint said.

In Lima, a young would-be hijacker failed to divert a Peruvian jetliner with 119 persons on board to Cuba Saturday and wound up in hospital in the northern city of Chiclayo.

And in Calgary Paul Joseph Cini, 27, of Calgary, today elected trail by judge alone and entered a plea of not guilty to all charges laid in the hijacking of an Air Canada jet last November.

NUDIES FACE PROSECUTION

His move allows the Vancouver police to halt nude dancing at the Club Kobnhavn. Peterson said if there is any delay in prosecuting the club, it would not be because the problem is stalled on his desk.

"I received a recommendation on my desk this morning for a consent to prosecute one club in Vancouver, and I signed that consent this morning, and it's on its way back to the prosecutor in Vancouver today," Peterson said.

He identified the club as the Kobnhavn, but he said he expected all other Vancouver night spots featuring nude dancing to comply with the law.

"If they are going to defy it, they will meet the same fate," he said.

Vancouver night clubs showing nude dancing stopped the practice earlier this year in the face of an apparent crackdown. But no clubs were prosecuted and those which had stopped these shows and which belonged to the Canadian Restaurant Association indicated recently they would begin again.

The club Kobnhavn never stopped its nude entertainment and it is not a member of the CRA, as are all the other clubs featuring similar dancing.

Massive Transport System for North

TORONTO (CP) — A "mindboggling" northern transportation system costing billions of dollars will be built in the next decade, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Saturday night.

"I don't know at this time the precise nature of that system," Mr. Trudeau told the National Newspaper Awards dinner.

"I do know, however, that it will be many-faceted, that it will be expensive, that it will bring immense benefits to Canadians in all parts of the country, and that it will be a reality in this decade."

Mr. Trudeau said part of the system will include a Mackenzie Valley corridor incorporating both oil and gas pipelines and an all-weather highway—Canada's first to its Arctic coast.

"The cost of construction of that part of the northern transportation system will be in the neighborhood of $10 billion," Mr. Trudeau said.

He said to put the figure into context, the cost of the St. Lawrence seaway, Canada's most expensive single project to date, was $500 million.

The prime minister also envisaged establishment of a "north port," a deep-water, all-year facility which would extend the present shipping season to 365 days from 85 and which would affect heavily the economics of transportation in both northern and western Canada.

There would be more use of aircraft in the new north, Mr. Trudeau said. He said on the drawing board now are aircraft of gargantuan size which might rival ocean vessels as carriers of freight.

He portrayed Canada as a land of heroic size which calls for heroic deeds.

"We have a land so large and a climate so difficult that only extraordinary efforts will suffice. Our history is a narrative of that sort of thing."

Mr. Trudeau, who has travelled widely through the north, complained that too few Canadians know that part of the country or the story of its conquest, from the canoe brigades of the fur traders to the present-day bush pilots.

He warned that a primary condition of any northern development policy must be the protection of both the environment and the Indians and Eskimos.

McGeer Calls Disunity 'Threat'

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

Liberal leader Pat McGeer warned today that a leadership contest during the party's May convention will give Premier Bennett an opportunity to point to party disunity on the eve of a provincial election.

McGeer said in an interview he has no objection to fighting a challenge to his leadership when the Liberals meet in Penticton May 20-22.

"We have a party where the ledership is open to challenge at anytime," he said.

But McGeer added that the "timing creates difficulty because it gives Premier Bennett an opening for criticism of the party," he said. "In any other circumstances" a leadership fight would strengthen the party.

B.C. Liberal party president Mel Couvelier said last Thursday it is almost a certainty that someone will challenge McGeer, who has been leader since 1968.

Nobody has yet appeared as a potential challenger to McGeer, but Couvelier has not ruled out the possibility that he would run for the leadership.

Asked whether he thought the leadership question should be postponed until after the next provincial election, McGeer said this is a decision for the party executive.

He said the executive must consider the disadvantages of a leadership contest at this time, because "it seems evident we will have an election soon."

"But the executive has got to have complete judgment in matters of this kind. I am only the servant of the party," said McGeer.

SURPRISED

He said he is aware of no one who wants his job and he added he would be surprised if Couvelier ran against him.

McGeer also warned B.C.'s teachers not to become identified with any political party in their campaign against new provincial legislation restricting their salary increases. He said all groups such as teachers' and labor federations must maintain "good working relationships" with all political parties.

He said the alliance of the B.C. Federation of Labor with the New Democratic Party has not been good for either organization. The provincial Liberals don't want endorsement by any groups such as the B.C. Fed. or the B.C. Teachers Federation.

Instead, individuals within these organizations should work individually in support of the party they support.

McGeer said he is expecting Bennett to issue a call for an election within the next three weeks. If Bennett waits any longer, he said, the election likely will be held later this fall.

80 Countries Sign New Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, Soviet Union, Britain and 77 other countries today signed a treaty renouncing the use of biological weapons.

President Nixon said it should be the first step toward eliminating the threat of war.

With Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin looking on, Nixon said in a ceremony at the state department that not only should signers renounce force, but should not encourage other nations to use force against their neighbors.

Some observers felt Nixon's remarks were directed at the Soviet Union, which the administration has accused of encouraging the current North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam.

A total of 74 nations were represented in the international conference room at the state department. The remaining six nations were represented at various other ceremonies in other world capitals.

Conspicuously absent, however, was France, which has also refused to sign the nuclear test ban treaty. China also was not present at any of the ceremonies, but it was uncertain whether China would eventually sign the treaty.

When Do We Say 'Stop'?

It is ironic that Premier Bennett's call for federal curbs on wages, prices and interest rates might find a better reception in the United States than in Canada. But although Ottawa is not likely to give Mr. Bennett much encouragement in his current campaign, it is probable that the idea of such restraints has been circulating on Parliament Hill much more freely in the past year or so than in any year since the Second World War.

Prime Minister Trudeau has hinted at compulsory price and wage restraints more than once since his appeal for voluntary restraint in wage negotiations and price setting fell mostly on deaf ears. The inflation spiral does not appear to have been appreciably flattened by any direct action on the part of labor or management. Mr. Trudeau has not gone beyond vague hints in the direction of compulsory curbs, but it can be argued that some form of restriction on increases, whether voluntary or imposed, is needed.

Mr. Bennett leaves it to Ottawa to work out a plan whereby curbs might be enforced, and this obviously would be a great deal more difficult than merely deciding to try the device. There are two considerations, unfortunately, which make wage and price controls a very complicated cure for inflation, quite apart from philosophical considerations. One is that a vast bureaucracy, for administration and supervision, would be necessary, with possible black markets appearing in many areas of commerce.

The other is that Canada, being a trader on the world market, does not live in a closed economic system. Economic controls in this country must sooner or later be affected by conditions in other countries, particularly the United States, for price levels must bear a reasonable relationship internationally or other economic factors will come into play to equate them. Failing achievement of a natural equilibrium, great pressures build up against arbitrarily imposed situations, as seen, for instance, in the periodic chaos which has assailed the international money markets in recent years.

Canada is therefore not entirely a free agent in combating inflation, although domestic efforts can have some good results. Inflation today is an international malady even though its effects are domestic. But Mr. Bennett is right in his efforts to set examples of wage increases held to reasonable limits. And he is right in his assertion that we are in a very dangerous inflationary period. The savage erosion of savings, of pensions, of insurance funds, of "nest eggs" shows no abatement, and it is the people of modest means who suffer the most from this depletion of purchasing power.

It is time that the nations recognized each other's inflation problem as well as their own and undertook emergency measures on a joint international basis to bring some order into this runaway creator of poverty. The myth of ever-bigger figures on pay cheques and in price lists should be exposed. If we began to quote wages and salaries in terms of "real" dollars, the amount of goods they can buy, the fallacy of making the figures incessantly bigger would become evident. Then we could stop chasing our economic tails.

'Environmental Aggression'

As more countries become aware of infringement by other countries on their environment — through air and water pollution, for instance — there will be an increasing need for international redress of complaints.

Mr. Maurice Strong, the Canadian-born Secretary General of the U.N. Conference on the Human Environment (to be held in Stockholm in June) introduced the concept of "environmental aggression" in a recent interview. By using the term Mr. Strong underlined the seriousness and global nature of the pollution menace. He made it plain that the issue has become "pervasive and revolutionary" and that it calls for a radical reordering of government on the planet.

The U.N. Secretariat expects to be given power to enforce global treaties having to do with problems like ocean dumping. But Mr. Strong holds that serious disputes would be referred to the International Court of Justice, special tribunals or even scientific mediators.

In seeking a remedy for "environmental aggression" the United Nations is wisely exploring every procedural recourse in an attempt to head off ecological irresponsibility. The global politics of the future could well grow out of efforts made now to cope with this life and death matter.

After-Effects

The project has won little attention internationally, but the principle involved in a federal district court judgment in North Carolina carries significant impact for environmentalists distant from the scene of an important test.

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service was taken to court by environmental groups when the service decided it did not have to prepare an environmental-impact statement for stream-channelization of a creek in North Carolina.

Stream channelization is a term to cover widening, deepening or straightening of stream beds for better control of the water flow. Application of the practice to the particular watershed involved, said the environmentalists, could damage or destroy valuable aspects of local watersheds, including fish populations and plant life. Their argument was upheld and the environmental-impact statement was required.

The court obviously understood what the channelization was supposed to do. It also wanted to know what inadvertent injury it could cause — a judicial demonstration of an increasing trend to look to the final effects which tampering with the environment may cause.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Point of View

It should be a well-known fact by now that the U.S. military complex has dropped more bombs, chemicals, napalm, pellet bombs and other newer weapons on Vietnam than were used in all of the Second World War. This was done without a U.S. Congress declaration of war.

In spite of all the destruction the Vietnamese people have control over most of their country and continue to fight strenuously for their independence from U.S. domination and the policy of Vietnamization.

Canada is not blameless in this slaughter of a people willing to fight for their independence rather than be dominated by a succession of corrupt Saigon governments.

We are one of the largest per capita suppliers of material to this man-made giant war machine.

On April 13-15 President Nixon is to visit Ottawa. At this time Canadians should press Prime Minister Trudeau to put an end to Canadian contracts of all war material and related products to the U.S.A.

Must we live with the guilt of helping to destroy people, homes, villages and the ecology of a small poor nation whose only wish is to be left alone and who have proven this by continuing their resistance to U.S.-style Vietnamization? (to use a mild term).—Evelyn Peaker, 998 McBriar Ave.

Letter to Mr. Bennett

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce the matter of possible "retroactive land taxation" was raised.

It was pointed out to the directorate that there have been suggestions made in the legislative assembly that where land which has been utilized for a lower use is eventually sold to be utilized for a higher use, a levy should be imposed upon the vendor of the land equal to the aggregate of the difference between the land taxes which were paid, and which would have been paid had the rate applicable to the higher land use been levied from the date of first ownership to the date of eventual sale.

The British Columbia Chamber of Commerce, through its directorate, wishes respectfully to advise that it has given detailed consideration to the matter of "retroactive land taxation" and is opposed to the imposition of such a tax as being inequitable and being inflationary in that it would invariably greatly increase the sales price of such land. The directorate, of course, is in agreement that where deferred assessment and-or taxation has been initially mutually agreed upon between the owner and the local taxing authority, such deferred tax be levied and recovered. — C. W. Laver, President, British Columbia Chamber of Commerce.

Mail Service

The strike of the CBC technicians is an opportunity for the federal government to rescue the taxpayers from the enormous expense of this operation, by closing it down permanently.

Having done so, it could then perhaps afford to hire a few more people, so we would again have a six-day postal service, and to see that we don't go three, four or five days without mail every time a public holiday comes around. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

Minority Voice?

The recent meeting of 750 people in the Empress Hotel might seem to indicate serious opposition to the policies of the government, until we realize that the 750 people represent three groups of people, each with its own particular axe to grind.

First there are the high-priced teachers, angry with the possibility of getting a smaller dollop of ice cream on their second piece of pie.

Then there are the unions, angry at the possibility of losing their stranglehold on the economy in general and the construction industry in particular. They are afraid of legislation that will bar restrictive clauses from their agreements, and perhaps eliminate some of the something-for-nothing clauses.

Finally there are the NDP, busy making political hay by expressing support for their union bosses.

Since each of these groups has its own particular axe to grind, we should not regard the meeting as expressing the views of more than a minority of B.C. voters. — Maurice Rookwood, 2464 Plumer.

Driving Regulations

Much as I admire Mrs. Elford's admirable qualities as Mayor of Oak Bay, I am afraid her latest attention to Traffic Laws is not one of them, and I ask Council not to agree to her submission for additional fines.

My friend Leslie Peterson, Attorney-General, in his wisdom, passed through the Legislature one of the finest Acts of modern times in the Points System to relieve the gruelling and increasing pressures on the courts. If Mayor Elford's proposals were passed, the whole machinery of the judiciary would be thrown into chaos and the progressive effect of the Act as it now stands would be reversed. The points themselves provide now the necessary punishment in the possible loss of licence to drive.

I doubt the report that my friend John Green, Oak Bay police chief, agrees with this latest proposal and in any case he is a servant of the municipality and must abide by what they say. The reported increase in the issue of "Points Tickets" could, of course, be due to increased road usage by new drivers who may need correction.

Since I was fined five dollars for parking my car outside my own house here in Oak Bay where I pay taxes I came to the conclusion that bureaucracy has gone mad and this latest proposal is a further example of interference in the rights of the individual.

These views of mine come from driving for sixty years and flying for fifty-six years all without an accident. They have been submitted with the greatest respect to Council in session — Clarence S. Goode, Squadron-Leader Royal Air Force (Retd.), 1840 St. Ann St.

Regional Zoning

Much has been written about regional zoning, and it looks as though more will be heard on the subject as time goes by. But, I wonder if there are individuals or groups of people who have actually suffered hardship or loss as a result of being zoned, or perhaps are suffering only anguish at the moment because zoning is zooming in on them. If so, I would be pleased to hear from such readers. Also, it would be interesting to hear from readers whose living standards have improved under zoning regulations. —Joe Pullen, Box 4, Errington, B.C.

Wishful Thinking

The recent article regarding teenagers made me start to wish many wishes. First of all I wish that mothers would go back to making a home for their families. I wish that they would bring up their families to be steady, responsible adults. I wish that instead of the mother occupying a salaried job that she was home training her children to occupy that job. I wish that women in stores and offices who now serve me did not look as though they had rushed away from the kitchen sink and were at their counters anxious to return as fast as possible to their sinks and automatic washers.

I wish that business women showed the charm and thoughtfulness of home training. I wish that young women dressed as though they had confidence in themselves as women who felt a good woman was more precious than gold. I wish that I could see young couples shyly enjoying each other's company and laughing — yes, laughing.

I wish that women were proud and confident in the dignity of womanhood. I wish that they would stop howling in the streets for money and benefits which only lead to more howling.

I wish I could help these teen-agers, but there are too many. I can only hope that this letter reaches those who can help them—their mothers. — Reader.

Pre-School

In regard to the article titled "Pre-School Salaries" in the April 4 edition, we wish to clarify that in the Cordova Bay area there is a day care centre and a pre-school. While the day care centre is a profit-making organization, the pre-school is run co-operatively by the parents on a non-profit basis.

The article is very misleading insofar as use of the word "pre-school" as it is essentially talking about day care centres.

I am sure your subscribers would be equally as interested in an article on the non-profit pre-schools and how they are run. For further information please contact Mrs. Inga King, President of the Vancouver Island Co-operative Association, 798 Oliver Street, 598-2847. — Mrs. Willa Burke, Secretary, Cordova Bay Pre-School.

History Repeats

In the preface to "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," George Santayana is quoted: "those who fail to remember the past, are doomed to relive it."

In 1927, Hitler legalized abortion for he considered the unborn a parasite. His next step was to do away with any parasite to society such as the senile, the deformed, the retarded and eventually anyone who dared to disagree. I wonder how many know that Hitler killed off 4 million Germans before he exterminated 20 million Jews?

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of April 10, 1912:

H. C. Brewster will visit Vancouver tomorrow for the purpose of gathering together the Liberal forces there and infusing into them something of the vigor which the organization once possessed, and he is hopeful that good results will speedily be achieved. "Now is the time for young men of political ambitions to join the Liberal party," says he. "There is plenty of room for them on our side and no room at all on the other. The seats at the Conservative banquet table are all taken, while with us a hospitable welcome awaits all comers."

WILLIAM R. FRYE

Awaiting a Castro Bid?

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — After Peking, Moscow. After Moscow, Havana?

President Nixon's penchant for the dramatic and the unexpected has produced speculation that his next major peace overture to an erstwhile enemy might be to Fidel Castro of Cuba. This speculation was subsiding last month when something striking happened to revive it.

What happened was that Jose Figueres, President of Costa Rica, outlined to the board of directors of the Inter-American Press Association in San Jose the terms of a possible settlement with Castro. Figueres did not claim to be speaking for Washington, and there is no public sign that he was. But no one in Washington has shot down the balloon.

Figueres suggested that Cuba could be reinstated in the Organization of American States (OAS) — that is, be rehabilitated, her isolation ended — provided she would do four things:

- Set free all political prisoners.
- Grant freedom of movement for Cubans into and out of Cuba.
- Cease exporting subversion in the hemisphere.
- Stop playing host to hijackers of airplanes and ships.

Tougher Terms

These were, of course, terms which Castro was unlikely to meet in the near future. They were tougher, in some respects, than those the United States has set. But in the semaphore of diplomacy, they could be read as an effort to set in motion a negotiation.

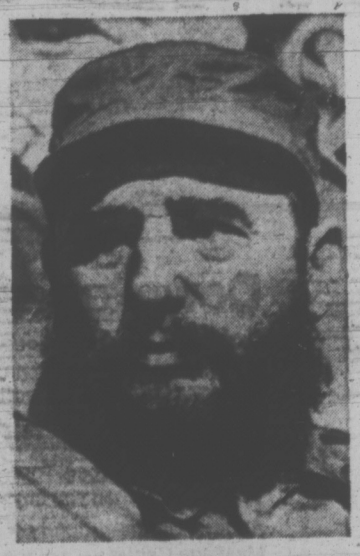
And one major demand, always previously made by Washington and its friends, was not emphasized. It was that Castro sever his military ties with the Soviet Union.

Figuere did note that, as a Soviet military base, Cuba was a threat to the United States, and that this question would have to be resolved. But he said it could be handled by the United States and the Soviet Union directly.

There was no suggestion that Cuba give up Communism. On the contrary, Figueres said history could take care of what type of government a country preferred to have.

There has been no response from Havana. Castro has not served any ping pong balls. But his silence is in itself an interesting novelty. If Castro were offended, he would not have been bashful about saying so.

The idea of a reconciliation with Cuba is admittedly way out. But so, a year ago, was a reconciliation with Mao Tse-tung. These days it does not take very much imagination to picture President Nixon swinging a scythe at Cuban sugar cane, with Fidel at his side and American television cameras frenetically transmitting the scene live via satellite to the world.



FIDEL CASTRO
. . . unlikely to agree

There is an underlying compulsion driving Washington toward a new policy in Latin America, and by extension toward a reconciliation with Cuba. By some means or other, the United States will have to come to terms with social ferment in the hemisphere.

Chile is only the most conspicuous example of this ferment. Uruguay, once a model democracy, is also in great turmoil. Peru has its own special tensions. So does Brazil. There is scarcely a country south of the Rio Grande which does not.

To cut down the men who rise to prominence on this wave would be a never-ending, and pointless, undertaking. ITT's apparent effort to involve the CIA in a bid to prevent Salvador Allende from taking power in Chile is a classic example of futility. Word of it has materially stengthened Allende.

The policy of isolating Castro was adopted because he could not be allowed to spread havoc freely, and because no other course was immediately apparent. Its concomitant was the Bay of Pigs.

Principal Peril

But it clearly is no longer sufficient as a means of blocking the spread of Communism in Latin America. Castro-inspired subversion is not the principal source of danger today. The principal peril is (and perhaps always was) poverty, social injustice, and other urgent grievances which the Communists claim they will correct.

Isolating Cuba is, therefore, becoming as anachronistic as isolating China. There is reason to believe Washington would abandon the policy if Castro would co-operate.

But it takes two to go on television, and no murmurs of a thaw have been heard as yet from Havana. Shortly after the Figueres balloon, Nixon was asked at a news conference if he was "going next to see Fidel Castro."

"No, I have not been invited," was the answer. The president did not say what he would do if he were invited.

A news conference remark not much less ambiguous triggered China's 1971 invitation to the president. If Henry Kissinger were to disappear from view one day and return a week later with a bright sunburn, it might not be that he had spent the time bikini-watching on a beach in the Bahamas.

Welcome to America Land of Violence, Filth viewpoint

By PETER JENKINS
The Manchester Guardian

(Peter Jenkins, the Guardian's new Washington correspondent, arrived recently in the United States. Here are his impressions.)

WASHINGTON — Many of the things which first strike the visitor to the United States have begun to happen in England, too. The motor-car is beginning to get the better of us; for food we eat more and more pre-packed chemicals; concrete is creeping up on us; our countryside is scarred and our rivers and seas grow dirtier; if violence is as American as cherry pie, at home its getting to be as native as Irish stew.

But everything has gone so much further here in the U.S., and if what America is like today, is what the entire industrialized world will be like tomorrow, then the visitors to the future must report that it has failed.

By comparison with most American cities, the centre of Washington is a quiet and clean and pleasant place. Yet you can't really walk in it; it has been given over to the motorcar. On a Sunday afternoon you see no prams; families stroll in their motorcars. The other Sunday there was no parking place within half a mile of the national gallery of art. It has been made difficult to approach it by foot.

At each intersection you stop and wait until the lights permit the pedestrian a few seconds to scuttle across. The height of the curbs, we discovered, is another explanation for the absence of prams.

You can't go shopping on foot either. We live in an inner suburb but the nearest shop is about three-quarters of a mile away.

In order to park more easily, people drive three or four miles to shop out of town. That's why they shop only once or twice a week and that's one reason presumably why everything is so frozen and packaged.

The motor-car designed to enable ease of movement, has made life infinitely more difficult and inconvenient: and by rendering communities centre-less it has made them soul-less too.

Down in Florida the process has gone an awful stage further. Miami is one of the famous seven monsters of the world, an unbelievably nasty place and a living symbol for the end of civilization. But take Tampa on the west coast, too, for example: it is not a place but an expressway system sustaining a population of a million like leaves on its branches.

The University of South Florida, on the autoskirts of this gruesome conurbation is the nearest I have seen to the drive-in university. Set in fine bicycling country and considered an architectural showpiece, the campus is designed to provide lavish space for the motor-car. It has sign posts, traffic lights and its own armed campus traffic cop.

"You want to drive over to chemistry?" one student asked another. Next they will be sitting in their cars and plugging into their lectures like a drive-in movie house.

From the window of a train — the bankrupt Penn Central — between Washington and Baltimore, the view is of fields of scattered garbage and hills of rusting metal. The Americans pride themselves on hygiene but it would be hard in the poorest of underdeveloped countries. What they have done there is shocking and disgraceful — a wanton desecration of a land.

In Baltimore, a cab driver who took us was giving another driver a lift. We thought at first they were discussing cars but they weren't: they were comparing notes on various makes of guns. One of them was off to buy an automatic for 80 dollars.

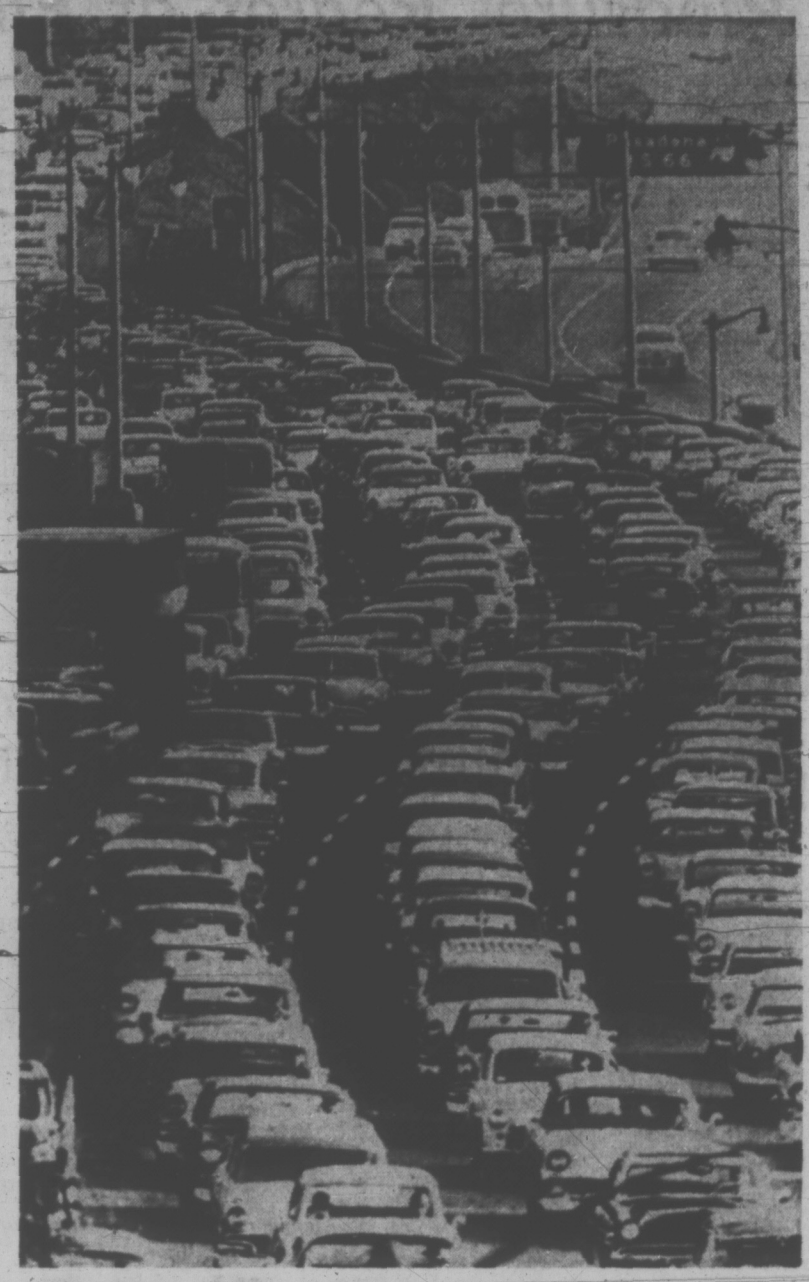
Were cab drivers licensed to carry guns? "No, sir, but I'd rather be caught by a cop with an illegal gun than caught by a Nigger without one." He said there had been seven murders in Baltimore in the past four nights.

At a child care clinic in Washington, a doctor advised against common brands of baby food recommended by the American Medical Association. They contained monsodium glutamate, in quantities which had been shown to do brain damage to rats. They also contained unrefined sugar and salt sufficient to result in hypertension later in life. We should strain our own vegetables and meat, he said.

On the credit card application form it promised that the card was recognized by all leading hospitals. You can still be left to die in this society unless you can show ability to pay. If you collapse in the street it is as well to carry your credit cards.

Americans complain about all these things, too, but the escalator is going up faster than they can run down. Technology is adept at alleviating problems of its own making while thereby creating new and worse ones. Corporate greed and individual addiction to consumption are more powerful than the voices that cry "stop, go back."

One will learn to adapt and probably accept the American way of life, but perhaps the first naive perception is the truest: that one is no longer observing a great society in its painful making, but a man-made monster in the final stages of preparation.



CARS SEEM TO BE EVERYWHERE in the United States, says Manchester Guardian writer Peter Jenkins, who sends his impressions of the new world home to England. (See articles on the left.)

Doctors May Be Obsolete For Controlling Diseases

By JOHN ROWAN WILSON

(Wilson is a well-known author and a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in the United Kingdom.)

LONDON — Over the past few years increasing doubts have been expressed as to whether we are producing the right kind of doctors for an expanding world population.

It is now being suggested by a number of health experts that the whole concept of the university-trained physician as the backbone of health services is out of date.

A recent challenging statement on the subject by Dr. Croft Long, an American medical adviser in Central America, has just appeared in the journal Tropical Doctor. Dr. Long is critical of the medical profession for failing to find any realistic solution to health problems in Latin America. He states that "attempts to bring health care to rural areas which involve extensive use of doctors and registered nurses should be abandoned once and for all."

There are a number of reasons for this. The first is lack of money. Many developing countries are not able to afford more than a dollar a year per head of population on health, by contrast with $100 in Western Europe and $250 in the United States.

They cannot therefore pay realistic salaries to doctors and they do not have the capital or the skilled labour to erect the conventional "white corridor" hospitals in which modern physicians are used to working.

In addition to this their disease pattern is much more complicated and intense than that of richer countries. Endemic infections which have been virtually eliminated in the West are widespread and in urgent need of control. There are also the effects of malnutrition. Dr. Long points out that the infant mortality rate in Latin America is at least 10 times higher than corresponding figures for the United Kingdom and the United States.

In West Africa it has been shown by previous studies that nearly half the children born are likely to be dead by the age of five.

It is hardly surprising that the doctors in these countries are making little impact on the situation. In Latin America a usual figure for doctors per head of population is about one in 5,000, compared to one in 700 in the U.S. and one in 500 in Western Europe.

In Africa one doctor for 20,000 people is quite usual, rising in Ethiopia to one in 100,000.

However, these figures, appalling as they are, give a grossly optimistic picture as far as the countryside is concerned. Research shows that in most developing countries it is usual for half the country doctors to be concentrated in one or two large cities. The number of doctors per head of population in rural areas is consequently much less than for the country as a whole.

Crash schemes to train new doctors in the developing countries have proved ineffective. Only a limited number of students can be admitted each year for training, and population growth nowadays is such that at the end of six years the number of extra doctors is not even sufficient to cope with the increased number of patients in the countries concerned. The developing countries find themselves spending a large proportion of their scarce resources doing no more than standing still.

It has also been found that there is a considerable wastage among the doctors that are trained.

Only a relatively small number of them end up in the country districts where they are really needed. They are lured away by the better financial rewards of private practice in the towns, or by the opportunity of emigrating to Western countries where the standard of living is higher.

Thousands of Pakistani and Indian doctors badly needed in their own countries, are at this moment working in relatively junior posts in the British National Health Service.

There is increasing evidence that elaborate medical training is not only uneconomic and self-defeating; it is also unnecessary.

Medicine has changed out of all recognition in the last 20 years, mainly through the discovery of new drugs and vaccines.

★

Diseases which were either incurable or required complicated medical attention can now be effectively dealt with by treatments which are so routine that they do not require a doctor to administer them.

Modern medical science knows very well how to deal with tuberculosis, malaria, intestinal worms, and the nutritional diseases of infants.

Trachoma blindness can be prevented by the administration of antibiotic drops and leprosy can be cured by taking a course of tablets. The problem is simply to get these discoveries of modern research to the people who need them.

What is needed is a public health program less allied to medicine by private consultation than to the improvement of water supply and sanitation.

It involves a large number of small bush clinics, staffed by medical assistants who have received a short but effective training in the common diseases they are likely to encounter. These can be supported by a number of mobile teams providing specialist attention for conditions that the local clinic is not capable of dealing with.

While doctors are still essential, it is clear that their main future role should be to provide instruction and education to members of the health team. They will also be necessary to cope with complicated cases and with major surgery.

Systems of this kind have been tried out on an experimental basis in a number of countries, with impressive results. In Nigeria, the organization of simple rural clinics for children under five years of age has been shown to reduce the mortality rate from 40 per cent to 14 per cent.

One of the main obstacles to these developments has been a natural reluctance on the part of the developing countries to commit themselves to what might be regarded as a "second class" medical service.

Indeed, many of them have longstanding programs for training medical assistants and auxiliaries which they have been planning to phase out and replace with doctors.

They have until recently assumed that because the affluent West used the personal doctor system, it was the correct system which they should aim at.

But now even the West is beginning to revise its ideas. The demand for comprehensive medical services for all, irrespective of income and geographical location, has led to the training of medical assistants for rural areas in the U.S. In England the emphasis is on health centres with an increasing amount of delegation to nurses and social workers.

It may well be that in the use of "medicine without doctors" the developing countries are actually the leaders of a trend which will soon become general throughout the world.

WILL TV END COMMONS SWEARING?

AN EDITORIAL, Toronto Star

The House of Commons committee on procedure and organization is once more considering the question whether the debates in Parliament should be televised. Parliament has been hesitating over the matter for a long time. We hope that now it will take the plunge.

There are real advantages to be expected from admitting television cameras to the House of Commons. Canadians across the country, watching the more significant debates in their living rooms, would get a clearer idea of national problems and the way their government handles —or fails to handle—them.

The introduction of TV might also improve the behavior of the members of Parliament. With the eyes of the voters back home on them, they would be less likely to stay away from the sessions; read, write letters or sleep at their desks; or engage in the kind of name-calling and partisan bickering which wastes so much time at present.

AN EDITORIAL
Toronto Star

The national parole system needs tightening. Parole violations have increased sixfold in the past 10 years.

Public opinion was roused when wife-slayer Yves Geoffroy managed to flee the country while on temporary leave from the penitentiary. Last week, parolee Thomas Warburton tried to hold up a Toronto bank and was fatally wounded when he exchanged shots with the police.

Now police are seeking Richard Swearngen, who overstayed his Christmas leave from penitentiary, for attempted murder after the shooting of two men.

These failures, though glaring, ought not to cause a backlash powerful enough to destroy the whole concept of paroles. People are rightly incensed by violent crime, but the parole system cannot be condemned out of hand.

Refusing to parole any prisoners would be to declare that no one who has committed a crime can be rehabilitated.

Pleasure, Regret at Finale

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

There was a great deal of pleasure and not a little regret to be experienced Sunday in the final concert program of Victoria Musical Art Society.

The concert was distinguished in many ways: in the exceptionally fine balance of the program, in the delightful quality of performance, in the richness, charm and interest of the music itself.

There were seven artists involved in the various chamber performances and their ensemble work was a joy to hear. Which makes it all the more regrettable to realize that this particular group will not be heard together again.

Several are leaving the city for one reason and another and their departure will be a grave loss to musical circles.

In her continued role in the full ensembles and in her exquisitely sensitive partnering of soprano Erika Kurth, cellist George Kiraly and violinist Elfreda Gleam, Mary Ducker once more proved herself to be an ensemble pianist of rare quality.

She and her greatly talented violinist husband, Sidney Humphreys, will be profoundly missed when they return to England in July.

The concert opened with a spirited baroque piece, Sinfonia con Tromba by Guiseppe Torelli, played with a lilting clarity by Boyde Hood on trumpet, Elfreda Gleam, violin, Zdenek Kriz, viola, and George Kiraly with Miss Ducker.

This, with violinist Uldis Lepmanis, who joined the group for the concluding Bach Cantata No. 51, in which the ensemble made a brilliant showing, constitutes the New Arts Ensemble.

In a pleasing change of century and idiom, a lieder group included Schubert's tender Liebesbotschaft and Auf dem Flusse, the musing Morgen and the flowing Standchen of Richard Strauss.

The full, warm soprano voice and musical maturity of Erika Kurth, her intelligence and taste in phrasing and control of color, together with Miss Ducker's superb insight in the piano part, created a series of well defined moods.

And in a later Purcell group, as well as in the florid Bach vocal line, once more Mrs. Kurth revealed her technical expertise. This group concluded with a brief virtuoso piece in which Mrs. Kurth and Miss Ducker were joined by the brilliant trumpet of Boyde Hood and cellist Kiraly.

Kiraly, who is also leaving the city to pursue his musical studies, demonstrated fine musicianship and an excellent command of his instrument in the Boccherini A major Cello Sonata.

He produces a lovely clean time, free of burr and consistent throughout the octaves. His bowing style is admirable, as is the flexibility of his left hand fingering.

Six Epigrams, a violin suite of short characterful pieces by former UVic faculty member Derek Healey, were played by Elfreda Gleam, also making one of her last appearances. These charming pieces explored many facets of violin tone and texture and were most skillfully presented by Mrs. Gleam whose humor and facile bow did the composition full honor.

POT MEN FREED

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — The Michigan supreme court has granted writs of Habeas Corpus for 128 prisoners now serving time for marijuana possession, opening the door for their immediate release.

All the prisoners are serving sentences under Michigan's old laws covering marijuana possession. A new state law with more lenient penalties for that offence went into affect April 1.

CABINET TOUR SET

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial cabinet will take a two-week tour through British Columbia beginning May 28 or 29.

Letters informing municipalities of the cabinet itinerary were mailed over the weekend.

Deputy provincial secretary Laurie Wallace said Sunday the tour will consist of cabinet meetings in major centres.

Some of the meetings will coincide with community anniversary celebrations. One such will be in Nelson where the city is marking the 75th anniversary of its founding.

The tour will begin with a "quick trip" up Vancouver Island to Kelsy Bay. From there the cabinet will travel to Prince Rupert and then to Prince George and the Cariboo before moving down into the Kootenay and on to the lower mainland.

Board Probing Sewer Claims

A three-man arbitration board is to hear details of claims running to more than $500,000 on a $2.14 million Capital Regional District sewer project.

The claims, amounting to $585,378, have been submitted by Dillingham Corp, Canada Ltd. for the construction and reconstruction of the northwest trunk sewer leading to the Macaulay Point outfall in Esquimalt. The company was the successful bidder for the work.

The board is comprised of chairman Boyd Ferris, Robert Binnie, representing Dillingham, and Charles Brawner, representing the Capital Regional District.

Today, the board considered the questions that it will determine, including the arbitrability of some claims, at the continuation of the arbitration May 8 in Vancouver.

Dillingham asked the board to consider the question of what money is payable by the district to it for various works, the date on which Dillingham should have completed the reconstruction work, what money is payable for costs incurred after Dec. 31, 1970, and division of the arbitration costs.

Louis Lindholm, representing the regional district, said the sewer contract was not a cost-plus project but a unit-price one. The prices to be paid for the work were the unit price multiplied by the quantity of material, he said.

He said the arbitration board is limited to determining questions arising out of the contract, and not from outside the contract, and the regional district does not agree with all 22 claims by Dillingham as having arisen from the contract, including one for $113,000.

Lindholm said Dillingham should detail its claims and the board should determine which are arbitrable, what "if any" money is payable for claims arising under the contract; was the contract completed within the specified time and if not, is the district entitled to damages, and if so what amount; and appointment of the arbitration costs including the fees of the arbitrators.

FERRY MAY DROP PR. RUPERT CALL

JUNEAU (AP) — Alaska is considering routing all its southeast Alaska ferry trade through Seattle rather than Prince Rupert, public works commissioner George Easley says.

"Such a step is definitely under consideration," Easley said. "I think it could make sense."

Experiments into service out of Seattle begun late in 1967 indicated such runs would be successful, he said.

Presently, two of the four ferries in southeast Alaska service call at Seattle in the off season, and one of the four provides weekly service to Seattle the year around.

Alaska has commissioned two studies on the advisability of making Seattle the southern terminus of all its ferry voyages up the inside passage to Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway and other points, Easley said.

He said any Alaska decision must balance the benefits of increased tourist traffic against frequency of interport calls in Alaska.

"Half our passengers are tourists," Easley said. "It doesn't make sense that they'd rather drive up to Prince Rupert than take the ferry at Seattle."

Plant Seeking Sewer Linkup

An application by Fatt's Poultry Processors Ltd. of Victoria for a pollution permit to operate a plant on Keating Cross Road may prompt an industrial zone extension of the sewer system now being installed in Central Saanich.

Municipal council is opposed to the poultry plant plan to dispose of 30,000 gallons of treated effluent daily into a drainage system which empties into Hagen Creek and Saanich Inlet.

Bert Fatt, owner of the processing firm, said today that the application with the Pollution Control Board had been filed "because we had to start somewhere."

He would be in favor of connecting with a municipal sewer extension even though it would cost the firm much more, he said, but there would have to be more than one firm interested to make it worthwhile.

Since news of the application has been made public Fatt said that two local businesses had told him they would be willing to connect to a new sewer extension.

Mayor A. M. Galbraith confirmed today that council will not stand for any contaminants being dumped into Hagen Creek.

The problem could be solved with a sewer extension, agreed the mayor, but emphasized that this must be initiated by the people in the Keating Cross Road zone.

The Victoria poultry processing firm owns four acres in the area zoned for light industry and the new plant would employ 30 to 40 people.

Other businesses on Keating Cross Road include manufacturers of campers and aluminum window screens, a farm equipment supplier, a lumber yard and a berry processing plant. All of these businesses use their own septic tank sewage disposal systems.

Metal Workers Reject Offer

Sheet metal workers on Vancouver Island have turned down an offer for a new two-year agreement from Construction Labor Relations Association.

The vote, completed Saturday, showed 75 opposed and 30 in favor. About 250 members of Local 276, Sheet Metal Workers International Association, are affected by the vote.

The offer involved a pay raise of 75 cents an hour in four stages on the present base rate of $6.27 an hour, plus five cents extra for a medical-dental plan.

Local business agent Bob Watkins said the raise was divided into 25 cents for the first six months, 15 cents for the second, 15 cents for the third and 20 cents for the last six months.

He said a strike vote is not planned at this time and hoped for further negotiations with CLRA.

Trade Trends Disputed

WASHINGTON (CP) — Is Canada's recent trade surplus with the United States a temporary fluke or a long-range trend?

Some American officials believe the surplus is likely to continue indefinitely at a substantial level, and have drawn up projections to explain why. Their forecasts would tend to support American demands for trade concessions from Canada.

Canada is avoiding what one official describes as "the forecasting game" because it feels long-range trade projections are unreliable. For the short term, Canadian officials fear the trade deficits of earlier years may return.

The conflicting views could make negotiations even more difficult when the two countries eventually resume their trade talks, stalemated since February.

Canada had persistent and large trade deficits with the United States for years, until In 1971, Canada sold $1 billion more in commodities to the U.S. than it bought, contributing substantially to ah overall U.S. trade deficit.

FACE ELECTIONS

There is no indication that long-range forcasts of a continuing Canadian trade surplus have as yet been adopted by senior American negotiators to support their case for important trade concessions.

Officials from both countries stress that political considerations, particularly in connection with the Canada-U.S. auto agreement, remain the main roadblock at a time of pre-election activity on both sides of the border.

However, the forecasts are known to be circulating in the treasury and commerce departments here at what is called the "technical" level, among bureaucrats normally responsible for preparing information for senior negotiators and handling daily contacts with Canadian counterparts.

One official in the commerce department said: "Between the two countries, one of the basic differences is that the Canadians are more pessimistic about their future prospects than we are.

"They say the trade surplus is an aberration. We say it's a trend. We don't think we're likely to go back to the point where Canada has a substantial deficit on the trade account, although there may be year-to-year fluctuations."

CITE CAUSES

Among the factors cited by U.S. sources that point to Canadian surpluses:

—Shortages of raw materials and fuel, especially oil and natural gas, are likely to produce increased sales because market forces will work strongly to assure supplies to the U.S.

—A growing second-industry sector, actively encouraged by the government to increase employment, will require export markets to survive, and the U.S. is likely to remain the principal target for such exports.

—Continuing surpluses in automotive trade as a result of long-range programs already implemented by the Big Three automakers, despite any concessions Canada may make in the auto pact in response to U.S. pressure.

—A rapidly expanding American market for most imports, as a direct result of the increased prosperity which many economic analysts predict will follow inevitably from President Nixon's wage-price freeze, devalued American dollar and other measures designed to spur the economy.

Canada has argued that it needs a trade surplus to repay the dividends and interest owed to American investors.

Nazi-Hunter Finds Hitler 'Spared' Jews

HAIFA — Adolf Hitler overrode opposition from Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler and spared the lives of 300,000 Polish and Russian Jews needed as factory workers for the German army in the Second World War, an Israeli Nazi-hunter said Sunday.

Hitler was persuaded by the armed forces that the Jews were necessary for the German war effort, and the Nazi dictator agreed that "they should not be exterminated until the end of the war," Tuvya Friedman told a reporter.

COLUMBIA, S.C. — James F. Byrnes, 92, a one-time newspaper vendor who forged a career as United States secretary of state, Supreme Court justice and governor of South Carolina, died Sunday at his home after an extended illness.

Byrnes, whose career in public service spanned nearly half a century, was in hospital several times in 1969, once for a mild stroke.

LONDON — Canadian veterans of both world wars gathered Sunday to mark the 55th anniversary of Canada's historic capture of Vimy Ridged with a memorial service in St. Martin-in-the-Fields, the royal parish church.

Canadian High Commissioner J. H. Warren and about 90 bemedalled veterans attended the service — an annual event usually held on the nearby Horse Guards parade grounds.

LOS ANGELES — Betty Blythe, 78, a veteran of 116 movies including the silent classic The Queen of Sheba, has died after a long illness.

Miss Blythe, who earned $1 million a year in the 1920s at the peak of her career, created a stir when she appeared as Sheba wearing nothing but ropes of pearls.

DAVID NIVEN
. . . gorilla guest

NEW YORK — Senator Harold Hughes says he has smoked marijuana. "During the Second World War in Africa, I smoked marijuana and it had absolutely no effect on me," Hughes said on NBC's Meet the Press Sunday. "Marijuana isn't physically, or except in remote instances, even psychologically damaging." When asked if he favored an amnesty for persons serving prison sentences for using marijuana, Hughes replied: "Absolutely."

ALVESTA, Sweden — The Rev. Hans-Lennart Hartler has worn the cassock for 10 years but never mounted the pulpit.

"I suffer from vertigo," said Hartler, 38, throwing a nervous glance at his pulpit, a modest six feet above the floor. "For 10 years I've preached my sermons from the church floor, where I feel safe."

VANCOUVER — Four thousand volts of electricity surged around Vernon Brown for almost an hour Friday, but he came out of the ordeal unhurt.

Brown was operating an overhead construction crane in Burnaby when a cement bucket he was lifting was blown into nearby high-tension wires and became entangled. Brown sat tight, waiting for the power in the wires to be shut off. Burnaby fire officials said the crane operator was not electrocuted because the cab of his crane is made of wood and is insulated.

LONDON — Actor David Niven, 62, a wildlife lover, has accepted an invitation to open the Isle of Jersey Zoo's new $26,500 gorilla house, which will serve as a bridal suite for Npongo and Nandi and their husband, Jambo.

Niven cabled the zoo: "Please tell gorilla's wives I accept wedding invitation with pleasure providing at no time left with happy couples."

HALLEIN, Austria — Fireman Rudolph Segart took his mattress into attic to see if a single cigarette could make it catch fire. It took fellow firemen several hours to put out the fire which gutted Segart's house.

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. — Nine-year-old Shawn Ritter bought a pair of jeans for 10 cents at a rummage sale and found $155 in the pocket.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Kathleen Ritter, said Shawn turned the money over to police, but if no one claims it in six months, the $155 will be his.

LONDON — A would-be cat burglar was anything but catlike when Mrs. Cynthia Williams spotted him climbing up a drain pipe in London's Clerkenwell district and called in police.

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Juliane Koepcke, lone survivor of a Peruvian jungle airplane crash that killed 91 persons last Christmas, flew again Friday.

An employee of West Germany's Lufthansa airlines who escorted the 17-year-old girl on the regularly-scheduled flight from Lima to Frankfurt said she flew the entire distance in the cockpit of a 707 jet.

NEW ORLEANS, La — A railway engineer driving a 97-car freight train through the suburbs of New Orleans was arrested for drunken driving.

Bill Russell, 43, of Shreveport, La. was booked after the train he was operating struck the bumper of an automobile.

BRISBANE, Australia — The 28 male nurses in Queensland's public hospitals have raised the cry for "men's lib" with a demand for equal pay with women.

At present, they receive $9 less a month than women nurses.

GENOA, Italy — A Roman Catholic priest handed the chief of Genoa's political police a surprise package. It contained 127 sticks of dynamite, 100 German-made detonators and 36 yards of fuse.

It came from a young political extremist stricken by conscience, who confessed to the priest that he was involved in cabotage attempts, and was persuaded to hand over the materials.

MARSEILLE, France — Policemen serving a traffic violation on a woman at her home here were surprised when greeted at the door by several scantily-clad, smiling young women.

The policemen added a brothel-operating charge to the traffic ticket.

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Harold Tennyson told police he "puffed away" $2,000 in cash he received from an estate. He said his lawyer gave him the money in small bills which he stuffed in a brown bag and put in his pocket.

As he walked down the street after leaving the attorney's office, he reached in his pocket for a match to light a cigarette. Two blocks later he realized that the paper bag containing the cash was no longer in his pocket. Tennyson ran back up the street and found the bag. The money was gone.

SEATTLE — It took 30 pounds of liquid cow manure to get the job done, but David Sannes finally got arrested.

Sannes, 29, who says he is a former informer for the FBI, threw the manure around the lobby of the Seattle federal courthouse. He said he wants to get on the witness stand in federal court to accuse the FBI to incite bombings and riots through the use of informers.

'Impossible Job' Tackled

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, just three months in what has been called the world's most impossible job, already has proved it is not so impossible.

Since he took over from the ailing U Thant on Jan. 1, Waldheim has moved the formerly intractable problem of South West Africa off dead centre towards possible solution, reversed a dangerous trend toward new conflict in Cyprus, applied the brakes to runaway inflation in the swollen UN administration, and greatly eased short-term financial problems.

Now he is considering whether to take his brand of personal diplomacy to the Middle East.

When his special representative, Gunnar Jarring, returns to New York about April 15 to review the possibilities for renewing Arab-Israeli peacemaking efforts, the secretary-general will decide whether to visit Middle East capitals himself.

Waldheim, a 53-year-old Austrian diplomat, got the UN job because the much-favored Max Jakobson, Finland's chief delegate, could not overcome Soviet opposition. The secretary-general is appointed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council, and the great powers have the right to veto.

INVOKED VETO

Russia invoked its veto against Jakobson, a Jew who had written critically of Soviet diplomacy, but who was the emphatic first choice of the U.S., Britain and China.

Jakobson, soon to become Finland's ambassador to Sweden, the key foreign post in the Finnish service, built up an enviable reputation here as an activist, a clever negotiator, and skilled administrator.

Waldheim, on the other hand, was thought by some to be too cautious, overly conservative, a good enough diplomat, but not the miracle worker the UN needed to restore world confidence in the organization.

A sensitive man, Waldheim was determined to prove his detractors wrong, particularly their belief that he would be a do-nothing UN chief.

He announced he would go to trouble spots himself, talk to principals face to face—in essence, pursue the vigorous personal diplomacy that was the hallmark of the late Dag Hammarskjold, but which, to some extent, lapsed with U Thant's more contemplative approach to the job.

WAS UNKNOWN

Largely an unknown quantity to the Third World members who form the UN's vast majority, Waldheim quickly won their favor, especially of the Africans, who greatly approved his style during the Security Council meetings in Addis Ababa in January and February.

The meetings culminated in instructions to make contact with South Africa on ways of obtaining self-determination and independence for mineral-rich South-West Africa, or Namibia as it is called in the UN.

PCs Oppose Special Status

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday negotiations between the federal government and the provinces would be carried out "in a more co-operative spirit" under a Tory government.

Interviewed on the French-language television station CFTM, Mr. Stanfield said the Canadian constitution must be modified, but he opposed any solution that would give Quebec special status or power.

"I believe that all provinces must have the same powers," he said, "but I want to create an atmosphere where the provinces will look upon the federal government as an asset rather than a burden which limits their field of activity."

Army Controls Zanzibar Following Assassination

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Tanzanian officials report Zanzibar's revolutionary council has received a pledge of army support and appears in firm control of the island following the assassination of its leader, Sheik Abeid Karume.

Karume, 66, was gunned down Friday night by assassins who burst into his political party headquarters.

Aboud Jumbe, his 52-year-old protege and minister of state, has been speaking for the revolutionary council since the killing and is believed to have taken charge.

The 35-member council broadcast a pledge to continue the authoritarian leftist regime which Karume set up on the spice island about 20 miles off eastern Africa.

Though Zanzibar is a part of Tanzania, its local government retains broad autonomy and differs sharply from the mildly Socialist regime of President Julius Nyerere on the mainland.

NOT A COUP

Officials in Nyerere's government believe the assassination was directed at Karume himself and was not an attempt to overthrow the government or steer Zanzibar away from Karume's socialism.

Authorities reported two members of the assassination squad were killed in a gun battle with security forces Sunday at Bumbwini, 15 miles from the city of Zanzibar.

Informed sources in Dar Es Salaam said security police on the island captured a fifth man also believed to have assisted in Karume's killing.

APOLLO 16 READY

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — The launch team fed electrical power to a Saturn V rocket today to start the lengthy countdown for Apollo 16, man's fifth expedition to the surface of the moon.

The countdown clock began ticking at 8:30 a.m., aiming for the liftoff of the giant rocket at 12:54 p.m. Sunday.

The clock read 104 hours 30 minutes as it started. It will be halted at several planned points to provide launch crew rest periods and catchup time for any item that might fall behind schedule.

Key events in the countdown include activating batteries, loading the spacecraft's power-producing fuel cells and pumping more than one million gallons of fuel into the rocket's huge tanks.

Astronauts John Young, a veteran of four space trips; Charles Duke and Thomas Mattingly planned to spend most of today in spacecraft simulators, rehearsing descent to the lunar surface, liftoff and rendezvous manoeuvres.

Young and Duke are to attempt man's first landing in the moon's mountainous highlands. The touchdown point is near the crater Descartes, just southeast of the centre of the moon's visible face.

Halalt Chief 'On the Move'

WESTHOLME — Josephine August, chief of the Halalt Indian reserve here, feels that she has finally started things happening for her people since she took office just over a year ago.

"When I took over there was nothing happening," the first woman chief of the band said. "Everything had come to a standstill and had been that way for a long time."

Mrs. August said that before, when people were elected chief, "many of them just took it as a glorified title but weren't prepared to carry out the responsibilities that went with it."

Over the past year, Chief August and her two women councillors, Nora George and Shirley Norris, have instituted several programs.

Trough $20,000 in grants from the department of Indian affairs and Manpower's local incentive program, the Halalt band has been able to carry out repairs on its water system and is currently renovating the old Westholme school into a community hall, extending the adjacent soccer field for the newly formed soccer club, and installing a sidewalk.

Mrs. August said living conditions of senior members of the band have been improved by bringing running water and plumbing to many of their houses. With three $8,500 subsidies, the band is also having three new homes built.

Members were hoping for an additional grant to improve their five-acre campsite skirting the Chemainus River so it could be open for public use.

Mrs. August said she is counting on volunteer labor to help clear the site as well as adding more running water and outside toilet facilities.

Mrs. August, a 41-year-old widow with 10 children (five girls and five boys ranging in age from 10 to 20), was born and raised in Saanich. She became eligible to become chief of the 158-member band, located eight miles north of Duncan, when she married a band member.

When she was asked by a group of people to run for chief in the band elections, Mrs. August said she accepted "because if they felt I could do something to help improve band conditions, all I could do is give it a good try."

He was treated with first aid at the scene and taken by Lake Cowichan ambulance to the Cowichan and District Hospital where he died shortly after arrival.

Funeral service for Aitken, who is survived by his wife Muriel, will be held at the Hirst funeral chapel here at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Leafs, Habs on Ropes In Stanley Cup Play

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens hung on the verge of elimination from the Stanley Cup playoffs today with little indication from either club that a reversal of their fortunes is likely.

Boston Bruins dumped the Leafs 2-0 Saturday and 5-4 Sunday while the Canadiens edged New York Rangers 2-1 Saturday only to succumb by a 6-4 score Sunday night.

That puts the Bruins and Rangers in front by 3-1 margins in the two best-of-seven quarter-final series involving National Hockey League East Division finishers with the fifth game in each series set for Boston and New York respectively Tuesday night.

Leaf coach King Clancy seemed bewildered Sunday night after the Leafs were swamped in a third-period comeback by the Bruins who showed no sign of any of the numerous injuries they were reported to have at the start of the series. Among the Bruins casualties reported last week were Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr with knee injuries.

"Somebody said before that they were hurting," said Clancy. "If they're hurting, you'll have to show me.

"And if that Orr is injured then I'm a Chinaman," said the 69-year-old Irishman.

ALSO BEWILDERED

The same note of bewilderment came from Canadiens defenceman Terry Harper who scored early in the third period at Montreal to tie the game at 4-4.

"I thought we would come on like gang-busters after we tied it up," said Harper.

"But for some reason we went flat after tying it up. We made the big comeback, knotted the count and then went dead."

Pete Stemkowski scored the winner at 14:55 of the final period and Ted Irvine clinched it for New York with an empty-net goal in the last minute.

HAD THE BREAKS

And at Toronto, winger Ken Hodge admitted it was a couple of lucky breaks that contributed to his two goals which led the Bruins third-period comeback.

"Breaks; that's what we had going for us," said Hodge, adding that the Boston team was surprised at how tough the Leafs have been in the series.

"We never expected them to come up with the effort they have in the playoffs. They're getting good goaltending, for one thing and the defence have been staying up at the blueline and forcing us to make the play from outside."

But Hodge was close in on both his goals and said that the first, early in the third period, went in off his knee, and the second, the game winner, went into the net off his skate.

Esposito, with his fourth goal of the series, and Eddie Westfall, accounted for the other third-period goals by Boston. Johnny Bucyk had put the Bruins in front in the first period but Dave Keon, Ron Ellis and Jim McKenny scored for a 3-1 Toronto lead and Paul Henderson made it 4-2 after Hodge's first goal.

"We played our game in the third period. In fact, it's the only period we've played our game in the whole series."

The Bruins were no slouches in Saturday's third period either as Orr made it 2-0 with only 1:24 gone in the period after Mike Walton started the scoring late in the second period. Both were power-play goals.

At Montreal, the Rangers had some personnel problems as they lost forward Ron Stewart with a rib injury and centre Walt Tkaczuk with a game misconduct.

Tkaczuk was thrown out of the game early in the third period for being the third man in a fight between Ranger Bill Fairbairn and Marc Tardif.

"It left us short," said Francis. "The fight left us without our two penalty killers and two of our best forwards. But the guys that were out there came up with a pretty fine effort."

The Rangers jumped to a 4-1 lead with two first-period goals by Bobby Rousseau and one each from Fairbairn and Vic Hadfield.

Jacques Lemaire and Marc Tardif got one each for Montreal in the first period and Yvan Cournoyer one in the second period before Harper tied it up early in the third.

Stemkowski then stole the puck from Montreal defenceman J. C. Tremblay and barged in to beat goalie Ken Dryden with a backhand shot for the winner.

FLYING HOCKEY was action behind Toronto net when Leafs' Jim McKenny (left) and Don Awrey of Boston Bruins collided. Leafs also went a-tumbling when Bruins rallied for three goals in final period to edge Toronto 5-4 in Sunday's National Hockey League playoff meeting. (CP Wirephoto)

Hawks Finish Sweep

Blues Rally to Tie Series

By the Canadian Press

Chicago Black Hawks relied on their heavy artillery Sunday night to triumph 6-5 in overtime against Pittsburgh Penguins and become the first national Hockey League team to advance to the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Victory gave the Hawks a four-game sweep in the best-of-seven West Division series and shot them into the semi-final round for the 20th time in their history. Chicago laid the groundwork Saturday night with a 2-0 shutout at Pittsburgh.

Earlier Sunday, St. Louis Blues, playing on home ice before 17,576 fans and a television audience, upset Minnesota North Stars 3-2 to tie their series 2-2. The Blues won Saturday night 2-1 after losing the first two games in Minnesota.

The Black Hawks now await the winner of the New York-Montreal series in the East Division, while the Blues prepare to return to Minnesota for a fifth game Tuesday night. The sixth match is scheduled for St. Louis on Thursday.

GOALS SETS RECORD

Centre Pit Martin was credited with the winning goal for Chicago, 12 seconds into overtime—which set a record for the fastest goal, previously held by Ted Irvine of Los Angeles.

Irvine scored at the 19-second mark on April 2, 1969, to give the Kings a 5-4 victory over Oakland and Los Angeles won that best-of-seven quarter-final 4-3.

Martin's goal was slightly tainted, however. The puck got away from him and tipped into the net off the skate of defenceman Tim Horton.

"I guess you'd say it was just a matter of seconds and inches," said Pittsburgh coach Red Kelly.

Chicago's Bobby Hull, scoreless in three previous games, set the pace for the Hawks with three goals. Brother Dennis added one and Jim Pappin produced the other.

SETS UP GOALS

In Saturday's contest, Bobby Hull set up both Chicago goals, one by Chris Bordeleau and the other by Stan Mikita, while Gary Smith blocked 31 Pittsburgh shots to gain the shutout.

The St. Louis triumph Sunday sparked the first controversy of the current playoffs.

Wren Blair, Minnesota general manager, said after the game he would demand removal of a goal judge from the series.

Blair's protest resulted from an apparent North Stars' goal in the second period by J. P. Parise who blazed a shot from the slot that staggered Blues' goalie Jacques Caron.

Caron caught the shot, but dropped the puck and sat on it while sliding backward into the net.

Neither referee John Ashley nor goal judge Dutch Mirell would uphold Parise's appeal for a goal.

Ashley said he had blown the play dead when Caron dropped on the puck.

"I'm going to demand that that goal judge not be allowed to officiate the remaining game in St. Louis," Blair said.

NHL officiating supervisor Frank Udvari countered Blair's implied charge of partisanship on the port of Miller by pointing out that he official resides in Los Angeles.

"If he didn't see the puck in the net how could he call it a goal?" Udvari asked. "You can't get more neutral than being from Los Angeles."

"That's two in two nights," Blair retorted in disgust, referring to a shot by Bill Goldsworthy that was disallowed as a goal Saturday night.

Jude Drouin's third goal of the series had given North Stars the lead and Danny Grant put them ahead 2-0 after 31 seconds had elapsed in the second period.

In Saturday's action, Roberto beat 42-year-old Lorne (Gump) Worsley twice to lead the Blues back into contention. North Stars, thwarted three times on previous power-play opportunities, connected only 40 seconds into the final period in Drouin's shot while Mike Murphy was completing a hold-over penalty from 19:46 of the second period.

Paul's Bump Wests Out of Top Berth

By JACK KEATING
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Frank Grealy wasn't discussing Stanley Cup hockey playoffs here Sunday, but it certainly sounded like it after his club's attempt to retain first place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

"They were laying on the weight and body and some of our younger players were being intimidated," pointed out Grealy, who was somewhat upset over tactics used by Paul's Canadians.

"I was disappointed the referee let things go," the Victoria West-United coach added. "Nevertheless they played good soccer and that (rough play) is no excuse."

Paul's did play good soccer, but some of their rough-house tactics apparently disrupted the United attack because Victorians rarely penetrated the home team's defence.

COUNT ON FIREMEN

Otherwise, hustling forwards popped in a pair of first-half goals as Canadians breezed to a 2-0 victory over United on the snow-patched field at Empire Stadium. Dave Orange and Tom Newman were the marksmen.

Victory vaulted Paul's over United into first place by one point. Paul's have now finished their league schedule and must rely on Vancouver Firefighters to upset or tie United next weekend to finish in the top berth.

That will be the last match of the regular season for both clubs and is the game the league executive ruled must be played after Firefighters earlier claimed a victory by default when United failed to appear due to a scheduling mixup.

Certainly it must have been one of the easiest of six shutouts recorded during the current campaign by rookie goaltender Darryl Wallace. Stout defensive work by Bill Rauson, Mike Jackson and Oscar Faoro, coupled with poor field conditions, kept United forwards in check.

Victoria's best scoring chance came from the opening kickoff when Dean Stokes fed a long pass to Howie Anderson, who rammed the ball past a post.

Wallace made a good stop off a rising Tom Forrester shot, then Jan Bentley headed the rebound over the net later in the half for United's only other good scoring opportunity.

Blues are locked in a fourth place tie with Gorge Molsons who will meet in a special playoff after the United-Paul's contest to settle the final playoff spot.

GORGE HELD TO TIE

On Saturday, Molsons missed a chance to wrap up fourth place as UBC Thunderbirds held them to a 1-1 tie at UBC.

Len Lendvoy shot UBC into a 1-0 lead in the first half but Bob Bolitho knotted the score at 1-1 scoring 30 minutes into the second half.

Rustlers Snatch Pair from Vernon

RED DEER (CP) — Darryl Wallis scored two goals Sunday to spark Red Deer Rustlers to a 7-3 victory over Vernon Essos for a 2-0 lead in their Western Canadian Centennial Cup semi-final.

Rustlers, champions of the Alberta Junior Hockey League, downed Vernon 5-3 in series opener here Saturday.

Third and fourth games of the best-of-seven playoff are scheduled Wednesday and Thursday in Vernon.

WORLD HOCKEY GROUP SHOWS FIRST CRACK

CALGARY (CP) — Three major participants in Calgary's entry in the World Hockey Association today announced they were pulling out of the fledgling organization, leaving the future of the Calgary entry in doubt.

Scotty Munro, the major backer of the Calgary Broncs, said he had decided to devote his time to junior hockey.

"I feel junior hockey is my life," he said.

Soon after, Bill Boswell and Orest Hershick, other members of the Broncs' organization, announced they were withdrawing.

Hershick said Broncos were "underfinanced from the beginning" and added he was convinced the team would never get off the ground.

Munro said a meeting of the WHA is scheduled in Chicago this week but he will not attend.

Masters In the Bag Nicklaus Eyes Open

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, savoring his fourth Masters golf title, is not prepared to regard it as the first leg of a potential grand slam.

"It is silly to talk about it at this stage," Nicklaus said Sunday as he fingered the threads of a long green jacket that symbolized a cautious three-stroke victory in the year's first major golf spectacle.

"You can't lump all four of the big tournaments together and think realistically of winning them in one year. If I should win at Pebble Beach and then at Muirfield, then you might talk about a grand slam.

"But not now—the odds are too great against it."

The 32-year-old Nicklaus said he plans now to concentrate on winning the U.S. Open in June at Pebble Beach, Calif., and, if successful there, move on to the British Open at Muirfield in July.

The PGA Championship at the giant Oakland Hills course in Detroit completes the big four of major championships which no man has won in a single year.

LED EVERY ROUND

In winning the 1972 Masters, leading every round, Nicklaus boosted the number of his major golf titles to 12, one less than Bob Jones' record 13 and sent his season and all-time money winnings soaring to new heights, more than $130,000 for the year and in excess of $1,500,000 for his career.

Jim Jamieson from Moline, Ill., blew to a 77 for 290 and Paul Harney, 42-year-old father of six from Worcester, Mass., who started the last day just three back of the leader, had an 81 for 296.

ARNIE SHOT 81

Another giant of the game caught up in Sunday's swirling winds and hard greens was Arnold Palmer, the only other player besides Nicklaus to win four Masters. He shot the worst round in his 18-year love affair with Augusta—an 81—and finished at an even 300.

But contrast, Lee Trevino, after three erratic and contentious rounds, settled down to an even par 72 and also finished at 300.

"I'll be back in 1973," said the Mexican-American, who had boycotted the tournament for two years.

"My main consideration was to win the tournament," Nicklaus said afterward. "Nobody made a run at me. Nobody was doing anything out there. So I decided to be patient and stick to a game plan."

Nicklaus said he got a lift when he sank a tricky putt at the 16th and felt fully confident after ramming in an 11-footer for his par at No. 17.

He had a five-stroke lead over the faltering field with eight holes to play but saw his advantage shrink when he went one over par at the 11th and 15th, where he three-putted.

ONE BETTOR GETS IT ALL

YAKIMA, Washington (AP) — John W. Pratt collected the entire 10th race exacta pool of $9,697.75 Saturday as the only ticket holder betting on the right combination in a crowd of 2,686 wagering at Yakima Meadows.

He collected the pool when Grand Ol Party won the 10th race at odds of 46 to 1 and Choppy River finished second.

Hockey TV Crew Suspended for Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Marconi Ltd. suspended the television crew covering the fourth game of the National Hockey League playoffs between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers Sunday night after the crew walked off the job in sympathy with striking CBC technicians.

The crew was "suspended pending investigation" because the technicians did not have the right to walk out, said Don Martz, vice-president of the broadcast division of Canadian Marconi, owner of the CTV-affiliated CFCF-TV.

The first period of the game was televised from the Montreal Forum Sunday night, but the telecast switched to the Toronto-Boston game in Toronto during the first intermission when the crew walked out.

"Only the crew at the Forum are suspended," said Mr. Martz, explaining that technicians at the studio stayed on the job.

He said the crew violated their collective agreement by walking out, but Robert Bouchard, chief negotiator for the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, said the crew was justified in their action.

Meanwhile, a province-wide lockout loomed following CBC radio and television technicians' refusal to report for work Sunday night.

The technicians left work at 5 p.m. Saturday, cancelling French-language broadcasts of the third game in the quarter-final series between the Canadiens and Rangers.

English-language coverage was provided by CFCF-TV which was to handle Sunday night's game.

Mr. Bouchard said the union told technicians to go back to work today, but the CBC threatened a lockout across Quebec.

In a telegram to the union Saturday, the CBC told technicians they must guarantee coverage of Sunday's game or stay out until further notice.

The union also was asked to attend a meeting today to discuss conditions for a return to work in Quebec and for adequate coverage of remaining playoff games.

Mr. Bouchard said he plans to attend the meeting.

The disagreement between NABET and CTV involves the wording of article 62 of the collective agreement with Canadian Marconi.

Mr. Bouchard called the CTV crew courageous in light of threatened reprisals against them if they walked out.

He explained that they were asked by NABET to walk out in sympathy with the striking CBC employees. Article 62 of the Canadian Marconi agreement provides that employees have the right to refuse to go to a place of work where a strike of persons involved in similar work is in progress.

But Mr. Martz disagreed.

"The wording of the agreement says 'the property of a striking union' and the Forum is not the property of the CBC."

CFCF-TV was the only station broadcasting the game. When the telecast was changed to the Toronto-Boston game, the station's switchboard was jammed by calls from irate hockey fans.

Wakeham Tops Times Field

MEDAL-WINNING card turned in by Bill Wakeham (left) is checked by Dick Silverberg after the two professionals completed qualifying-round march Sunday in Times Vancouver Island Open golf tournament. Colwood Course Rough on Competitors

Bill Wakeham picked off medal honors, and that normally wouldn't have raised an eyebrow after Sunday's qualifying round in the Times Vancouver Island Open golf tournament.

After all, the 31-year-old Cowichan professional has had his name engraved on The Times Trophy three times, was runner-up on three other occasions, and now has been the tournament's medallist four times.

Sunday's surprise was the manner in which Wakeham led the qualifying field.

Easy.

He checked in with a two-under-par 68, and you can't blame the rest of the field for asking if he played the same course as they did. No one else came close to taming the Royal Colwood layout except Gorge Vale amateury Ted Langlois, the runner-up medallist who fired a two-over 72, and Glen Meadows professional Dick Silverberg, all alone at 73.

Wakeham made his sub-par tour despite a double-bogey six on the third hole and one-over-par jobs on the sixth and 11 holes. But he compensated with six birdies and a putter that warmed things up for him on a raw and chilly day.

Wakeham counted only 28 putts on tricky greens that generally created most of the grief for the other starters.

That, for example, was Vaughan Trapp's problem. The Victoria Golf Club assistant, touted as Wakeham's chief threat in this year's title hunt, hit the ball superbly but could only qualify with a 76.

Thirty-nine of Trapp's strokes came on the greens.

And there were some notable victims who failed to crack the elite group of 32 who move into match play at Glen Meadows next Sunday.

The casualties included Reg Clarkson, last year's finalist who was just able to make it into the handicap division this year; two-time champion Eric Hibberson of Uplands; host pro Bill Court, and respected challengers such as Al MacLeod, Bob Hunt, Hal Jacobsen and Ricky Kent.

But for the luck of the draw, the casualty list might have also included Earl Davies, the Gorge Vale professional and 1970 champion.

There were 31 who qualified by scoring 79 or better. Davies filled the remaining spot when drawn out of a group of eight who had scored 80.

Only players scoring net 76 or better made it into the handicap division for the Hugh Francis Trophy.

Net scoring attested to Colwood's difficulty on Sunday. Only five players — Wakeham, Langlois, Rob Ferguson, Tom Maftechuk and Gorge Moon — managed to beat Colwood's par figure on a handicap basis.

In addition to Wakeham, Trapp, Davies and Silverberg, three other professionals qualified. They were former champion Norm Boden of Marsh Meadows near Duncan; Al Zimmerman, a retired Seattle professional playing out of Glen Meadows, and Ron Cush, who plays at Cedar Hill.

Boden and Cush both carded 78s.

Boden wasn't overly impressed with his round, but that's been his qualifying style. The Victoria-reared pro has always started slowly. Qualifying quietly in other years, he has charged to the championship twice and was runner-up on another occasion.

Another past winner who qualified quietly Sunday was Colwood amateur Laurie Kerr, in with the big group of 78 shooters.

Russians Pour It On

PRAGUE (Reuter) — The reigning world champions, the Soviet Union, beat an aggressive and plucky Finnish team 10-2 Sunday in their first match of the world ice hockey championships.

It took the Soviet Union 17 minutes to score their first goal against the Finns, who were always on the offensive and pressed the champions hard.

From then on it was only a matter hof how many goals the Russians would score. Though the Finns fought bitterly to he end, their defence was far too loose for the fast and technically superior champions.

Earlier in the day, two leading contenders, Czechoslovakia and Sweeden, played their first game in the round-robin tournament. Czechoslovakia won 4-1.

Lakers Cooled In First Game

By The Associated Press

Milwaukee Bucks held Los Angeles Lakers to only eight points in the third quarter Sunday and took a 93-72 victory in the opener of the National Basketball Association semi-final playoff series.

In other NBA games, Boston Celtics beat Atlanta Hawks 127-118 to win their best-of-seven quarter-final 4-2 while New York Knicks downed Baltimore Bullets 106-82 to take a 3-2 lead in that set.

The Celtics now await the winner of the New York-Baltimore series which continues in New York Tuesday. Second game of the Milwaukee-Lakers set goes at Los Angeles Wednesday.

In the American Basketball Association, Denver downed Indiana 106-99 to tie that best-of seven quarter-final 3-3 Sunday. Saturday, Indian beat Denver 91-72 and Kentucky defeated New York 109-93 to cut the Nets' margin in that quarter-final to 3-2.

The Lakers had beaten the Bucks four times in five meetings this year and were favored to win the opener of their playoff series at Los Angeles.

Kareem Abdul Jabbar scored 33 points to lead the Milwaukee offence, but the thing that really killed Los Angeles was its unproductive third period.

Boston topped Atlanta with an explosive, 41-point first period. Dave Cowen and John Havlicek led the triumph with 26 points each as Boston secured its only road victory of the series.

Youthful Australian Ousts Ron Holmberg

QUEBEC (CP) — Three players advanced to the second round of the $50,000 Quebec International tennis tournament Sunday by defeating their opponents in two consecutive sets.

Australian John Alexander downed Ron Holmberg of the U.S. 6-3 in the first set but had to scramble to win the second set. Holmberg led 5-2 before the 20-year-old Australian stormed back with five consecutive games to take the set 7-5.

Tom Leonard of the U.S. whizzed by Australia's Owen Davidson by scores of 6-0 and 6-3.

In the third contest, Terry Addison of the U.S. downed Brian Fairlie of New Zealand 7-6 and 6-4.

The Quebec City International is one of a series of tournaments scheduled for North America in 1972 featuring 32 professionals playing a single elimination tournament, singles and doubles.

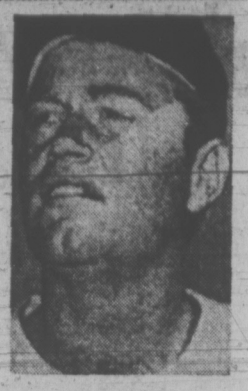
Rusty Is Ready



RUSTY STAUB
. . . three dozen bats

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Staub, the newest of the New York Mets, has checked into Shea Stadium carrying his artillery.

The star outfielder, obtained last week from Montreal Expos for three player, had three dozen bats with him.

"I buy all my bats during the winter because it's tough to get the kind of bat you want on short notice during the baseball season," said the big, red-haired slugger.

Staub, who says he uses at least 20 bats during a season, is partial to a light one that's specially made for his home-run swing.

Last season the right fielder hit 19 homers—an off-year for him—batted in 94 runs and rang up a .311 batting average.

He said he is happy to be with a contender although shocked by the trade from his beloved Montreal. The Mets shipped Tim Foli, Mike Jorgensen and Ken Singleton to the Expos in the deal announced Thursday.

Staub, accompanied by his agent, Gerry Patterson, signed a reported $95,000 contract with his new team. A Mets' spokesman said he "isn't getting a six-figure contract, but about as close as you can come to one."

Junior Playoff Pattern Avoids Pushover Status

By The Canadian Press

Nobody seems able to get much of a winning streak going in the best-of-seven quarter-finals of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Seven of the eight teams in the playoffs have won two games in a row and none could do any better.

The pattern continued Sunday night as Saskatoon Blades, who needed only a tie at home for victory in their series, lost 6-1 to Brandon Wheat Kings, tying their Eastern Division playoffs at 3-3, with one game tied.

Calgary Centennials downed Medicine Hat Tigers 11-3 to take a 3-2 lead in their Western Division series with one game tied.

Regina Pats, the only team without two playoffs wins to its credit, skated to a 1-1 tie with Flin Flon Bombers. This gave Flin Flon a 2-1 lead in the series with one game tied.

The eighth game of the Wheat Kings-Blades series is scheduled for Brandon Wednesday night. Brandon forced this contest by scoring two goals in each period and by getting outstanding goaltending from Dave McLelland who made 40 saves.

Bob McKinstry, Rick Blight, Dwayne Pentland, Mike Ford, Robbie Neale and Donn McLaughlin handled the Brandon scoring. Dennis Abgrall got the only Saskatoon goal, scoring early in the first period. The Blades were unable to connect again even though the Wheat Kings took five of seven minor penalties.

The seventh game is scheduled for Calgary Wednesday night and the eighth, if needed, in Medicine Hat on Friday.

At Flin Flon, Glen Toner scored the lone Regina goal late in the first period but Al Hillier replied for Flin Flon with less than a minute remaining in the second.

Regina had a great scoring opportunity in the third period with a three-on-one break but Roger Swanson, who faced 25 shots on the Bomber net, handled the drive easily.

The next game is scheduled for Tuesday with Flin Flon at Regina. In the other series New Westminster Bruins visits Edmonton Oil Kings. The Oil Kings lead the series 3-1.

New Stumbling Block Hangs Over Baseball

By The Associated Press

With President Nixon keeping an eye on the situation and buoyed by the first progress in months, talks aimed at settling the 10-day-old baseball strike moved from New York to Washington today, where both sides were to meet with a federal mediator.

But even should the dispute, which centres around the amount the major league club owners will contribute to the players' pension fund, be settled, a new stumbling block loomed over whether the players would be entitled to full salaries if a full 162-game season were played.

At one point Sunday night, today's on-again-off-again meeting with J. Curtis Counts, head of the federal mediation service, seemed off at the request of the owners after they made what spokesman John Gaherin called their "first money offer to the pension plan."

OFFER NOT DISCLOSED

Gaherin did not disclose the amount of the offer. The owners' only previous offer was a $490,000 increase, earmarked for the health care portion of the over-all pension plan. They currently contribute $6.4 million annually to the over-all plan.

Today's meeting was back on again after Counts received a call from the president urging that he do everything he can to get the strike settled.

A spokesman for Counts said the president told Counts he was "very interested in seeing the dispute settled so they can get the season started." The baseball season was to have started last Wednesday.

Scheduled to attend today's meeting were Counts; Robert Kennedy of the federal mediation service's New York office, Gaherin and Marvin Miller, executive director of the striking Major League Baseball Players Association.

Meanwhile, a new issue of disagreement threatened to arise as owners stood firm on docking the players their daily salaries while the strike lasts. The baseball season is based on 182 days rather than 162 games and through Sunday, each player had lost 5-18182nds of his salary, according to the owners.

"I'm saying I have a contract with these ballplayers," said Francis L. Dale, president of Cincinnati Reds, "and it provides that they must be in service all season and specifically provides that if they miss any part of it they will not be paid proportionately."

The players, who have been seeking a cost-of-living 17-percent increase in retirement benefits, went on strike April 1, forcing a premature halt to spring training.

Royals Alone on Top With Aid From Wests

Victoria West offered a helping hand and Cosmopolitan Royals did their part to regain sole possession of first place in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division.

While Royals were punishing Gorge Molsons 4-1 Sunday at Heywood Avenue Park, Wests were holding University of Victoria Vikings to a 1-1 deadlock at Topaz park, dropping the Vikings one point behind the leaders.

In second-division action the same day, Victoria West won over Century Inn by default; Gorge played to a 3-3 tie with Labatts and Prospect Lake bounced Saanich Braves, 5-1. On Saturday, first-place University of Victoria Norsemen played Saanich Braves to a 1-1 deadlock and Prospect Lake battled to a scoreless draw with Victoria West.

London Boxing Club will meet Oak Bay for the third-division playoff crown next weekend after scoring decisive semi-final victories on Sunday.

Boxing Club tripped Stein Construction 6-3 in one semi while Oak Bay defeated Castaways by the same score.

Dave Way paced Boxers with three goals while Jim O'Connell fired two goals to lead Bays.

East Saanich blanked Prospect Lake 2-0 Sunday in one of the few remaining third-division league matches—none of which has any bearing on the playoffs.

Victoria Lake Hill Kiwanis advanced to the fifth-division final with a 1-0 triumph over Vancouver Grandview Legion 179 Saturday in Vancouver. Westminster Langley Sports Club blanked North Shore Burdett Beavers 2-0 to gain the other berth.

COSMOS OUSTED

On first-division action Sunday, Vancouver Richmond Wanderers downed Westminster Langley Prestons 2-0 in one semi while Burnaby Cliff Avenue United tripped Powell River Mills Paint 6-1 in the other encounter.

Elsewhere Saturday, Vancouver Dunbar Strongs beat Victoria Gordon Head Cosmos 6-3 on corner kicks after the clubs battled to a 2-2 deadlock. Strongs will face Richmond Legion No. 5, 2-1 winners over Alberni Jordon and Biggs, in the sixth division final.

Castaways Capture Crown With Second-Half Surge

Hampered by gusty winds during the first half, Castaways quickly found conditions to their liking after the break and proceeded to score 14 straight points en route to an 18-13 rugby victory over James Bay Athletic Association at Macdonald Park.

Victory before about 500 fans gave Castaways the Barnard Cup, emplematic of the first-division playoff championship in the Victoria Rugby Union.

Castaways required some determined defending in the first half to prevent James Bay, playing with the wind, from taking more than a 9-0 advantage at half time.

PRICE SCORES WINNER

Machine-like precision of the forward line laid the foundation for Castaways' next points 10 minutes later. The Castaway scrum forged to the goal line and scrum-half Dave Slater completed the play by scooping up the ball and falling over for another try.

Kicker Cliff Yorath, troubled by the wind all through the match, booted the conversion. Yorath was wide on three convert attempts and short on a penalty-goal attempt.

Castaways gained the winning points and a 14-9 lead when winger Rick Price raced down the sideline for a try.

MARGIN REDUCED

But James Bay wasn't about to call it quits.

Outside-centre Tom Lippa narrowed the gap to 14-13 after scoring a try on a play that began at midfield, but Price notched another try with seconds remaining to provide insurance for Castaways.

James Bay made up for a lack of experience with some rousing play, particularly when Castaways could not utilize their usually strong kicking attack in the first half.

Bernie Sinclair scored a try, converted by Al Foster, at the 15-minute mark. Foster later added a penalty goal to provide the early James Bay lead.

Earlier Saturday at Macdonald, University of Victoria Saxons tumbled Nanaimo Hornets 22-11 to capture the Times Trophy and the second-division playoff crown.

Saxons led 8-7 at the half.

Eddie Shook paced the UVic squad with three trys, including two in the second half. Gio Mussato and Harjap Shahi each scored a try for Saxons while Jim Wenman booted a convert.

Both Castaways and Saxons now advance to the provincial finals, scheduled next Saturday at Macdonald Park.

Castaways play Vancouver Meralomas for the Rounsfell Cup at 2:30 and Saxons take on Vancouver Red Lion in a battle for the Province Cup at 1 p.m.

Gleaming Storms to Win; Practicante Clips Cougar

By The Associated Press

Gleaming, Calumet Farm's 2-to-1 favorite, stormed from 11th place at Miami Saturday to win the $145,200 Hileah Turf Handicap by a head over Double Entry.

Gleaming ran 1½ miles in 2:27 1-5 with Angel Cordero in the saddle, grabbing the winner's share of $94,380 in the 41st running of the grass stakes.

Eddie Maple, bumped off Gleaming when Cordero came to town to ride the Calumet ace, rallied to finish second aboard Double Entry.

Gleaming paid $6.80, $3.60 and $3. Double Entry returned $5.20 and $3.60 while Star Envoy paid $4.60 to show.

FAVORITE SECOND

At Arcadia, Calif., Practicante, an Argentine-bred runner ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., upset odds-on favorite Cougar II to win the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano Invitational Handicap at Santa Anita.

The six-year-old caught Cougar II in the stretch drive and won the gruelling 1¾-mile race in 2:45 3-5.

Practicante returned $19.80, $5.80 and $3.80. Cougar II, with Bill Shoemaker up, paid $2.80 and $2.20 while Nor II returned $2.80 to show.

BIG PERFECTA PAYS PLENTY

PORTLAND, Oregon (AP) — Mrs. William Rosford of Hillsboro, Ore., paid $3 Sunday for a Big Perfecta ticket at the Portland Meadows horse racing track and won $16,985.

Track officials said it was the largest single Pari-mutuel payoff in Oregon racing history.

TOO SOFT FOR PRINCE

ASCOT, England (Reuter) — The odds-on favorite Grey Mirage finished six lengths ahead of its nearest rival in the English Two Thousand Guineas Trial Stakes here Saturday — a race that lost a lot of its glamor with the withdrawal of Crowned Prince.

Crowned Prince, owned by Frank McMahon of Vancouver and firm favorite for both this race and the Two Thousand Guineas itself, was scratched shortly before the start because the trainer said the soft ground would not suit the horse.

Avancer was second with Disguise a further six lengths behind.

Rosewall No Match For Laver

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seeded Rod Laver, taking control early, smashed his way to the championship of the $50,000 River Oaks Tennis Tournament Sunday with a surprisingly easy 6-2, 6-4 victory over second-seeded Ken Rosewall.

It took Laver only 62 minutes to dispose of Rosewall in the nationally-televised finals between the two small but powerful Australians.

Laver, already the top money winner on the World Championship of Tennis tour, picked up $10,000 for his victory. Rosewall pocketed $5,000.

Laver, 33, broke Rosewall's service in the first, third and seventh games on the first set and in the first, fifth and seventh games of the second set. He closed out the match with a service ace in the 10th game.

Rosewall, 37, scored service breaks in the fourth game of the first set and in the fourth and eighth games of the second set.

In the all-Australian doubles finals, Laver and Roy Emerson defeated Rosewall and Fred Stolle 6-3, 6-3.

RUGBY STAR DIES

Second-Best Test Total By New Zealand Openers

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (Reuter) — Glen Turner and Terry Jarvis achieved the second highest opening stand in test cricket history Sunday when they put on 387 for New Zealand on the fourth day of the fourth test against the West Indies.

Only the all-time test opening record partnership of 413, set by India's V. Ankad and P. Roy against New Zealand in the 1955-56 series, remained unbeaten as Turner and Jarvis led New Zealand to a close score of 410 for one in reply to West Indies' 365 for seven declared.

Turner finished the day unbeaten on 210—his fourth double century of the tour—while Jarvis, pressed into the opening batting position because of the injury to skipper Graham Dowling, achieved his first test century before being dismissed for 182.

Turner now has scored 1,114 runs on tour including 572 in the tests and has been at the crease for 590 minutes.

Turner and Jarvis bettered the previous second largest opening stand in test history when they passed the 382 compiled by Australians Bill Lawry and Bobby Simpson against the West Indies in 1965.

Their partnership also was the biggest opening stand by New Zealanders in any first-class cricket—beating the 373 scored by Bert Sutcliffe and Les Watt for Otago against Auckland in 1950-51.

West Indies' solitary success came when Greenidge held a catch low down at cover off the bowling of Holford to end Jarvis's innings after 541 minutes. He had hit 19 fours and a five.

WINNER of women's aggregate award at international diving meet in Winnipeg Sunday was Canadian star Beverley Boys (above). Now residing in Winnipeg, Miss Boys won springboard event Saturday and was second to Sweden's Ulrika Knape in Sunday's tower event. Californian Michael Finnegan took men's aggregate trophy with victories in both tower and springboard contests.

Norwegian Skier Chalks Up Perfect Top-of-World Tally

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — Aslaug Dahl of Norway won all the races she entered to post a perfect 500 points and capture the women's title at the Top of the World cross-country skiing championships that ended Sunday.

A total of 189 skiers took part in the annual Arctic championships, skied this year in termperatures that ranged from 25 below zero on opening day to 15 above on Sunday.

SHARON FIRTH FOURTH

Michaela Endler of East Germany was second over-all among the women with 442 points and Hiroko Takahashi of Japan came third with 411. The Firth sisters from Inuvik, Sharon and Shirley, finished fourth and fifth, respectively, with 384 and 371 points.

Top U.S. skier was Jana Hlavaty of Chicago, who finished eighth with 240 points.

Eighteen-year-old George Zipfel of West Germany was second in men's skiing with 455 points and Fred Kelly of Inuvik was third with 425. Ulrich Wenger of Switzerland came fourth with 407 and Mike Elliott of Durango, Colo., fifth with 364.

Elliott won the men's title of the Trans-Am cross-country ski racing series Saturday, beating Kelly who was second and Malcolm Hunter, third.

The nine best races of the 12 held since the start of the series on Jan. 16 in New Hampshire were counted for the championship.

SWEEP TOP SPOTS

Zipfel had the best time of 48.43 minutes with Gryth second in 48.81. Wenger was third in 49.53.

Kelly placed fourth in 50.21 and Elliott fifth in 50.35.

Zipfel won the junior men's title with a perfect 400 points. Bert Bullock of Inuvik was second with 352 and Roger Allan of Inuvik third in 322.

The Firth sisters, backbone of Canada's women's national team, tied for first among the junior women with 380 points each. Akiko Tatahashi, Hiroko's younger sister, was third with 276.

In over-all competition in the six other younger classes, Inuvik entrants, who dominated the list of starters, won five of the six firsts, the other going to Whitehorse, Y.T.

Mr. Chips Carries On: Dignity, Sir, Dignity

Dear Diary: Well, thank heavens, that Mr. Snodgrass was there at the convention and so once again the gentle teachers of the province have been spared the terrible fate of becoming a great big dirty old undignified union.

Oh, I don't mean Mr. Snodgrass, the man. I mean Mr. Snodgrass the teacher type we all know and love, the sweetheart of the classroom, the Mr. Chips of our own school system. You remember him, don't you? The man with the frayed collar and cuffs in the eight-year-old suit, clanking up to the school in his ancient Austin, too proud to notice all those shiny limousines bringing his pupils to the establishment. How unselfish, how dedicated he was! Hasn't changed a bit, either.

Not for Mr. Snodgrass the crass consideration of a decent wage or one in keeping with his position in society. True, he might have to moonlight a little (I remember the finest history teacher I ever had taking bets at the two-dollar parimutuel window), but, by the Lord Harry, he had dignity.

He might make less than a third of what the average doctor makes and less than half of what a lawyer makes and just exactly half of what a dentist makes, but, after all, he was a professional man, just like them, and it is nice to be a professional man. If his pupils and their parents are not too impressed, perhaps, by a professional man who makes less than a bakery truck driver, well that's just too bad. All the crude bargaining of the trades unionist was for laborers, for millworkers, and terribly degrading.

If he reflected from time to time that he had the bargaining position of a Bolivian tin-miner or that the ground rules for the profession he loved were set by bureaucrats who couldn't teach a dog to fetch a bone, well, at least he knew his real worth in society. Not for sweet, mild, moderate, patient Mr. Snodgrass the nasty, ugly power of the trade union, not even if it meant that the standards of teaching might improve. Strike? Heavens, that would be dreadfully un-professional.

Well, he was there, in force, when the B.C. Teachers' Federation shelved once more the question of becoming a trade union and I, for one, say good for you, Mr. Snodgrass, and carry on Mr. Chips.

Dear Diary: The deep and continuing mystery of why the shareholders of Canadian Pacific don't bloody well insist that their company face up to the coming new age of flight seems even more bewildering than ever with today's announcement from the British High Commissioner's office.

It notes that Braniff International, the Texas-based giant that serves most of the major cities of South America, is no more than six months away from ordering the Anglo-French supersonic jetliner Concorde. Harding Lawrence, the head of the company, is quoted: "We anticipate placing orders for three." It could thus be the first of the eight American airlines, which have placed options on 38 of those magnificent flying machines, to convert to firm orders.

The likelihood is that within three years Braniff will be scheduling special express flights, augmenting its fleet or orthodox jets, out of Los Angeles and New York to the South American capitals. Pilots of the line have completed their first training in Concorde and in simulators. Lawrence says that the company is "thoroughly satisfied" with the airplane's performance.

While Braniff joined the waiting list when Concorde was still a blue-print, CP-Air played it cool and does today because they feel the plane can't be a money-maker.

While Braniff long ago saw that the South American routes were ideal for the twice-the-speed-of-sound Concorde, routes mainly over water or sparsely populated land areas where the sonic boom would present no problem, CP-Air, which flies the same routes, has shown no sign of preparing to meet the eventual competition.

Every study shows that the businessman and, to a lesser extent, the tourist, will pay an extra tariff for speed over the long haul — that's what airlines are all about — and so it's only simple economics to offer a choice through a diversified fleet of aircraft. Concorde alone can offer that choice. It's time CP's shareholders recognized it even if the top brass seemingly never will.

Dear Diary: It's not that I mind sharing a desk with the paper's film critic, but the fellow sees so much symbolism and hidden significance and morality messages into pictures that I sometimes wonder if we've really seen the same show. I seem to have missed all the meaning in The Last Picture Show, The Godfather and Carnal Knowledge, to name just three, though I thought I understood Ann Margaret pretty clearly.

Now I can't wait until he gets back from vacation to find out what I missed in The West Point Story, produced in 1950, that was on the magic eye yesterday afternoon.

What did it really mean when Gordon MacRae, singing alone in that empty rehearsal hall, was suddenly mysteriously accompanied by a 90-piece symphony orchestra? What was the symbolism when that dancer hurt his leg and old James Cagney had to replace him and brought down the house? Why did Doris Day give up her career as a great star to marry MacRae, a humble West Point cadet? How did Doris Day get into West Point anyway? Why was there a happy ending for absolutely everybody?

Back in 1950 that was just the way pictures were, the way we expected them to be, but now I'm not so sure. Were they really trying to tell us something and, if so, what?

Spencer Revisited

After all that fuss last year, the developer now wants more changes

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

The architectural firm, Wade, Stockdill, Armour and Blewett, has asked council for permission to move one of the three apartment blocks approved last year to a position closer to Summit.

Siting and other planning and building details were approved last year and written into a land use contract that has the power of a rezoning decision. Any substantial changes must therefore be treated as zoning changes, city officials said today, resulting in a new hearing.

Council may, however, refuse the request to change the development permit, fearing to set a precedent on land use contracts with developers.

The Spencer Castle project at Cook and Summit found its most vocal opponent in Mayor Peter Pollen who was an alderman at the time of the last approval, Jan. 19, 1971.

Pollen then charged that "subterfuge" and "conflict of interest" were at work when early details of the Spencer Castle land assembly were completed.

The project is owned by Danzo and Franco Holdings Ltd. The deal included sale by the city of an important 2-acre plot of land on the castle hill for $40,000.

The request for changes in the development permit plans pins the problem to the high cost of rock blasting.

"In order to avoid excessive, and therefore expensive, rock blasting, we would like to move Block A 23 feet north of its present position," the request says.

"The setback of 40 feet to the Cook Street property line would be maintained. The setback to Summit Street would become 51 feet; it was previously 74 feet.

"The construction of the driveway to Block B which is under construction necessitates that the blasting be done, but if Block A were to be relocated the amount of blasting could be reduced as well as preserving two rather fine, large, oak trees.

"Also, at this time we would like to apply for permission to build an open air swimming poool adjacent to the existing house."

City officials said today architects plans of the requested changes were not expected at city hall for inspection until tomorrow. It was not known whether resisting one of the apartment blocks would result in any other changes to the contract plans.

The plans called for three blocks of condominium apartment units at a total cost of $2.5 million.

The land is roughly square in shape. Two blocks were to occupy the north end of the property and one was to be sited in the southwest corner.

At last year's hearing, Pollen was joined by Ald. Tom Christie and Ald. Hugh Ramsay in opposing the development, though each had different reasons for their objections.

The remainder of council approved the project despite heavy representation from residents in the Spencer Castle hill area.

About two years ago, a similar attempt to get the property rezoned failed by a vote of seven to one after local residents organized a protest.

Earlier attempts to rezone and develop the property came in 1967 and 1961. At one point, owners of the Spencer Castle building tried to make a tourist business out of it but the project was closed down.

Port Alberni Developer Danilo Danzo bought the castle property two years ago for about $245,000 after city hall advertised in search of developers for the site.

Goal: $7 Million Arts Centre

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The cost of a centre combining cultural and convention facilities, tentatively planned for the site of the old Crystal Gardens, was pegged today at $6 to $7 million by the chairman of a group pushing for its establishment.

Allan M. Purdy, chairman of the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation, said his group would like to administer the centre, which he hopes will be funded by the provincial and federal governments as well as municipalities on Vancouver Island.

Purdy said a "congress of the arts" held this weekend at the University of Victoria showed strong community support for such a centre and said preliminary negotiations with government authorities will be held in the near future.

Purdy said the city of Regina has been able to get a cultural-convention centre of its own, funded by the city and the Saskatchewan government with assistance from Ottawa.

He said the city of Regina has a population of only 143,000 and their centre cost $7.5 million. "If Vancouver Island, with a population of about 400,000, can't support its own centre, we're in pretty bad shape," Purdy said.

The centre would attempt to bring together all aspects of the arts community, Purdy said, by including non-establishment artists and performers as well as traditional types.

He said the centre would contain a concert hall, a school of music with classrooms and performing areas, a small theatre for specifically local experimental productions, rehearsal rooms, as well as display rooms for arts and crafts.

Purdy said the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation's board of directors should take over direct management of the centre, "for a continuity of philosophy," and said he hopes the government will not step in and run the centre itself.

He said the Saskatchewan government has passed special legislation making itself owner of the Regina centre but had allowed the local arts people to administer the centre.

The proposed hierarchy for management of the centre, Purdy said, would have the board of directors handling financial matters, an executive director responsible for day-to-day decisions and two or three advisory groups such as the Greater Victoria Community Arts Council having a hand in the planning and operation.

The provincial, federal and municipal governments would have to have some say in management, Purdy said, but he hopes the local group would be able to make most of its own decisions after the centre is built.

Discussions on the centre are planned with Waldo Skillings, provincial trade minister, Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace and William Murray, speaker of the house and administrator of B.C.'s cultural fund money.

Purdy said he hopes local artists and craftsmen will be able to use the centre at no charge, using various rooms and foyers to display their works. He said there are few such areas for local talent.

He said city of Victoria officials have indicated support for the proposal and have tentatively agreed to rent the site of the old Crystal Gardens at a nominal cost to the foundation. Further negotiations will be held after the foundation has more concrete proposals to make, Purdy said.

PAPERBOY HURT

A 14-year-old newspaper carrier boy was found unconscious and critically injured beside the Trans-Canada Highway east of the Thetis Lake overpass at 5 a.m. Sunday.

Police said the boy, Charles Stephen Ferguson, of 1552 Trans-Canada Highway, may have been the victim of a hit-run accident. He was taken to Queen Victoria General Hospital with head injuries, cuts and bruises.

A hospital spokesman said today he was in fair condition but still on the hospital's critical list.

A Colwood RCMP officer said police hope to be able to question the boy today, but said he has been "semi-conscious at best" since he was found.

Government Holds Line On Employee Pay Hikes

The provincial government doesn't appear to have bowed to pressure for extra-large salary increases for specific groups within the civil service.

Salary increases approved by the provincial cabinet show the government stuck to its over-all salary increase limit of 6.5 per cent but gave some categories slightly larger increases than others.

The B.C. Government Employees' Uninion asked for increases averaging 11 per cent but requests for specific categories exceeded 20 per cent.

For instance, psychiatric aides received an increase to a minimum of $511 monthly to start and a maximum of $619 while the union asked for $660 for all psychiatric aides.

The increases sought for the psychiatric aides were described by the union as representing a 23 per cent increase. The increases granted were 4.9 per cent at the lowest level and 5.9 at the highest.

A similar shortfall occurred in the category of forest assistant where a flat $625 month was sought but a range of $430 to $519 was granted, an increase of about 6.8 per cent at the top levels.

Members of the BCGEU will be voting on their increases later this month in a vote described as a ratification procedure by the union.

Union secretary John Fryer said Friday he expects widespread dissatisfaction among employees as a result of the wage increase limits of the government.

Thief Goes Straight, Loot Turns

Police recovered a stolen $5,000 house trailer — but not the thief — after the man and his loot became separated during a highway chase in Colwood Sunday night.

At 11 p.m. Colwood RCMP gave chase to an old car towing a trailer when the driver failed to respond to an order to stop for a routine check.

At Orono and Knotty Pine, the car's ancient trailer hitch disintegrated. The car continued along Orono and the trailer went along Knotty Pine.

Police discovered the auto abandoned in the 200-block Jacklin. An eyewitness said he saw a long-haired young man fleeing from the stopped car.

The last registered owner of the car, a Sooke woman, said it had been sold for junk a year ago.

OPEN HOUSE, held in the Inner Harbour Sunday by commercial fishermen drew between 1,500 and 1,800 interested landlubbers. Pleased at the "good show," spokesman 'Stock' Day says the event will be held on a larger scale next year.

Volunteer Boatmen Forming Rescue Service

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Organization of a province-wide army of volunteer boatmen began this week.

The aim of the game — to bridge the growing gap between the accelerating number of marine accidents and lack of adequate search and rescue facilities.

In the planning stage since last December, the new force is called the Civil Defence Marine Service.

Considine, because of his grounding in naval service, drew up the blueprints for this war against needless loss of life on the water, whether it's the ruthless seas around our coast or lakes made treacherous by sudden squalls.

Considine explains how the new army will be marshalled.

Chiefs Sought

"The civil defence co-ordinator in each zone will be contacting experienced boatmen who will be appointed port marine rescue chiefs."

He explains that these chiefs will be the "king pins" in their respective areas. In many cases it could be a marina operator, a staff member of a yacht club, the chief of an Indian fishing village, a cannery operator or a seasoned seaman with a sense of responsibility.

The rescue chiefs, in turn, will select their own force, again making sure that each man has the necessary know-how and a boat capable of handling the situation.

Considine says the decision to form the new force was triggered by the tragic marine incidents of 1971.

"This is our first swing," he says, "but we're trying to bridge the gap and draw on the enormous amount of volunteer rescue power that's around."

Leach reports that he's been getting a lot of "feedback" from the Rescue Co-ordination Centre, asking his department to provide the same sort of rescue volunteer back-up force at sea as it does for land search and rescues.

Wall reports that 16,000 man hours a year are given by volunteers for land search and rescue work.

Lists Posted

He adds, "There's no reason why a man shouldn't get the same amount of help if he gets into trouble on the water."

"In order to save the waste of any precious second, lists of the port marine rescue chiefs will be posted at the rescue centre, RCMP stations and local police units."

Leach reports that several areas, aware of the need for more protection on the water, have already formed their own volunteer rescue force.

These, including ones at Campbell River and Port Alberni, will now be included in the over-all service.

Wall says that, adding to the natural hazards of our unrelenting coastline waters, people flocking to the coast from "unwatered areas" compound the problem of adequate rescue facilities.

"They sell their farm, drugstore or hardware store, come out here and buy a big boat. Some of them are qualified to handle a vessel — many are not."

He is confident that when they realize their more seasoned neighbors are willing to put their boats and lives on the block for them the uninitiated will learn the need for education in the most effective way possible.

"They're good Canadian citizens and not entirely dumb. When they see people willing to do this for a stranger — they'll take a good hard look at themselves."

Members of the volunteer marine service will have to get their kicks out of just that — service. There's no pay, no compensation for fuel or time lost.

They will, however, be covered under the Workmen's Compensation Board when on an assigned search and rescue incident.

They may not even get thanked by the people they rescue.

No Thanks

"The boat was leaking fuel, it was a dangerous situation. The man had a child aboard and the fisherman persuaded him to let the child go aboard his own boat. The man refused to leave. In fact, he insisted on being towed to a certain port.

"The fisherman said he couldn't do that but he would take him to the nearest point where he could get the vessel repaired.

"When they finally came alongside and tied up there was still no thanks. In fact, the fisherman got sworn at!"

"In other words, people just have to be a little more Christian. It's a small price to pay for your life."

dear abby

First, Go On a Diet Then Wash Grey Away

DEAR ABBY: The letter from Patty in Tacoma, the 25-year-old who looks like a teen-ager, has prompted me to write my first Dear Abby letter.

My problem is the reverse. I look much older than I am, but to make matters worse, my husband looks much younger than he is. John and I are both the same age, but I am constantly mistaken for his mother.

Don't tell me to touch up my hair because John says he likes grey hair. (His mother was prematurely grey.) And I know I am overweight, but John says he likes me this way, and he keeps pushing the food at me. I would like to wear more youthful and stylish clothes, but they don't come in my size. Believe me, Abby, I don't enjoy looking like my husband's mother, so what should I do.— Forty-two and looks like Sixty.

DEAR FORTY-TWO: You may not enjoy looking like your husband's mother, but apparently your husband enjoys it. If you really want to look younger, announce that you are going on a diet. Then, with your doctor's help, go on one. And wash that grey out of your hair! Your husband may like the new you better. And if he doesn't you'll be stuck with a lovely figure and a dye job which doesn't last very long, anyway.

DEAR ABBY: How does one introduce stepparents gracefully? My parents are divorced, and they are both married again to wonderful people. Using the term, "stepmother or "stepfather" seems so unfeeling.

I love my parents very much, and I truly love their new mates, but introductions are so awkward for me. Can you help?—Nameless, Please.

DEAR NAMELESS: Why not simply introduce them as "my parents."

DEAR ABBY: This is concerning the young lady whose newly divorced father objected to her calling him "Dad" because he didn't want to give away his age.

The daughter should have readily replied, "Of course I'll not call you 'Dad,' if you can come up with some other way of letting people know I am not dating a man old enough to be my father." Co-operatively yours — Carole.

Weather Is No Problem For the Girl in a Wig

By BEBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

1. Rain or shine, it's no longer a problem for a girl's hair to look great. The question is: is it, or isn't it her own hair?

Today, the world of synthetic hair is practically goof-proof and very inexpensive. Many types are so practical you can wash them, and in minutes, the curl returns—styled like new One researcher "questimates" one out of every five women own at least one wig, wiglet or curl cluster.

Questions Arise

2. Judging from letters we have received, the questions arise on long hair. Since many lengthy fakes are of human hair, professionals do have some helpful hints. As actress Fredrika Myers illustrates, hair pieces of human strands should be kept on a block or styrofoam head.

When not in service, the block helps the wig keep its shape. Beauticians advise uncovering it occasionally, so it can breathe the same as your own tresses. Also, keep it tangle-free with a wide-tufted wig brush, which unwinds snarls but doesn't remove strands.

Bounce Provided

3. Re-setting falls of hair isn't too much of a chore, since they are almost static-free. A few rollers, or curls, at the ends provide bounce and body to long locks.

What the pros caution against are clips and pins with sharp sides or grippers that cut. These may dent strands, or even break them. Since fake hair doesn't grow back, smooth clips or plastic-tipped bobby pins are a wise investment. Also, they suggest that you keep spray and hair set at a minimum. Use wig or water-soluble spray, so falls keep smooth and shiny.

Avoid dangerous sharp clips or pins

Count 10, Sister . . .

Many years ago, when I was still employed on a full time basis and not semi-retired as I am now, there would be days when frustrations closed in and I would, as they say now, lose my cool.

Invariably, when that happened and my angry voice rose to a point where it could be heard throughout the Times editorial room, a quiet spoken reporter at a desk not far from my own would look up from his typewriter, grin at me and say softly "count ten, sister . . ."

Lost Cool

I hadn't thought of those incidents, or of that pertinent phrase, for a good many years. Until the other day when I lost my cool at a statement I heard on a television program.

My blood pressure rose and I stomped around my living room, concocting a reply.

Just as I was about to blast that reply over the telephone I suddenly heard — in memory — the quiet voice of long ago and the words "count ten, sister . . ."

It stopped me. I did count to ten, and I didn't lift my telephone receiver.

The "count ten" bit, as I'm sure you know, is an old adage. A figure of speech that has come down to us (minus the "sister" of course, and with "before you speak" added), from the leisurely days of our grandparents.

Grandparents who knew that words can prove to be a strength and a power or on the other hand, a poison that will spread and grow.

Good words, they argued, once uttered, could be of tremendous worth. They also insisted that contributions were made in words as well as in deeds.

These are truths that many of us tend to forget today. Truths that we might be well to bring back into our thinking as individuals. For it is as individuals that we are responsible for our own contributions to our families and friends, our organizations and our communities.

Bring Peace

The beliefs of our grandparents are just as worthwhile today as they were long ago. The thoughtful word, spoken wisely and without self interest, will grow, bring peace, and help people to understand each other.

No two persons have received precisely the same thinking powers, the same traits for making things happen or the same ability to work for a cause and to make it come true. Capacity has arisen in many, genius in few.

Yet all have, and ever will have, individial traits which make them indispensible to the sum of the whole. And all have tongues.

Carry Thought

Carry that thought into your family circles. Take it into your clubs and your organizations, out into your communities and beyond into the troubled places of the world.

Take it to the conference tables where suspicions and fear so often cloud the air. Think of it, if you will, in connection with the Sermon on the Mount that simply tells us to do unto others as we would have it done unto us.

Then bring it back to the individual.

Whether words are to be strong and wise, or weak and without weight — in our homes, our organizations, our communities, or in the areas of world affairs — depends, in the first instance, on the individual.

Think well about that, sister (brother) . . . and count ten, before you speak!

'Z WAGON' WINS IN END

LONDON (CP) — Amid the capital's car-jammed streets, traffic wardens are in for a shot in the arm — thanks to the "Z wagon."

This monster vehicle is designed to zoom in on congested areas and hoist away with its special platform any car causing an obstruction.

No car, says the ministry of transport, can evade the Z wagon, no matter how many special locks and anti-towing devices have been fitted.

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

Heroin's Clients Still at School

His back is hunched against a cold northeast wind, but inside there is the warmth of anticipated pleasure. Then it's his turn and John carefully pushes the needly into his forearm. The plunger is forced slowly down, "skin poppin" $2 worth of heroin into the muscle.

John is nine years old.

He's also a ghetto black in New York City where death due to drug overdose is the largest cause of unnatural death among all teenagers, and John is not yet even a teen-ager.

On another day and 20 miles away in one of the more affluent suburbs, Peter and his white friends wait in the basement of a $70,000 home. They wait, not impatiently, for a higher high.

"Js," joints or cigarettes fashioned from marijuana and magazine paper, already have been passed around, lifting the boys a bit out of the normal world, fuzzing the sharper edges of reality.

After the "Js," they all had taken "red devils," pills containing the baribturate Seconal. It is an experiment none has tried before. If it doesn't boost them high enough, one boy has promised, a bottle of scotch swiped from the bar in the living room will.

Explosion Downward

John and Peter share little in common except their part in one of the newest and most disturbing trends in drug abuse — the explosion downward through the age groups of smoking, sniffing, swallowing and injecting drugs.

The Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous drugs reports, the number of addicts under 31 reported to authorities has increased 32 per cent since 1967. Much of the growth was outside urban centres.

Last year, those under 16 contributed 17 of their number to the New York City total of 254 teen-agers dead of drug overdoses. This compares to 65 in 1968.

Leslie, 15, resident in an Odessey House drug treatment centre in Manhattan: "I was a snorter (sniffer) of heroin and if I hadn't come here to get off drugs I would have gone on till I died. I started on herion two years ago when I was 13 'cause I wanted to be with my father. He was on junk, too.

All of us kids were into heroin and in the beginning it was the happiest time of my life. You know, when the herion would hit 15 minutes after a snort. You would just go right out of the world. But it doesn't stay like that too long, you know. The freaks (addicts) warned us about that. It got real ugly later. There were about 15 of us when we started. You know what happened? Of the 15, one is in jail, my boy friend died while on the stuff. All the rest but me and four others are still out there sniffin' and shootin' it up heavier and heavier each month."

Deeply Fearful

William, 15, also of Manhattan, thinks he has kicked drugs but is still deeply fearful his escape may be only temporary:

"I began at 10 on marijuana, then switched to glue. And then I was snortin' it (herion) and as much as I hated the sight of my own blood, I was mainlinin' by 13. That's the trouble with drugs. You just keep going up on them till you get to mainlinin' cause you can't get that real high on anything else you can afford. Me, I had five busts, then a friend died. But none of it meant anything to us. When we went to the funeral, we were all freaked out on heroin."

Gerald, 14, son of a doctor and an experimenter with nearly all drugs except heroin. Home, an affluent suburn outside New York: "The old man thinks I'm just using pot, and that drives him nuts enough. He should know I'm on the other stuff too, but he just doesn't want to look at the possibility even when I'm so stoned I can hardly walk. But then who the hell is he to talk? I hear him and his friends talking about using pot, too, like it's some big deal. And what kind of example is he?"

Psychiatrists say peer group pressure to join the drug world is becoming overwhelming in many areas, including the suburbs.

Sharpen Up Home With New Front

By PAULINE GRAVES

Whether you purchased a development house, an existing custom house, or built your own, after a while you want to give it a fresh look and sharpen up the general appearance. Many people do this with paint alone, changing the color or combinations of colors, but if you go a step further and make a structural alteration, however minor, your house will appear to be completely up-graded.

To create a new look, the small stoop in front of the door became a long concrete slab, extending out 10 feet from the house. Pacement of a low screen, four feet high and 12 feet wide, at the end of the slab and parallel to the house, created a small forecourt and blocked the view of the door from the street. An open screen above, made of one-by-sixes, reinforced the feeling of enclosure around the entry.

Part of the original structure aids the forecourt also. An eight-foot high redwood wall jutted out 10 feet from the house and had a four-foot return which embraced a narrow shade garden. The incorporation of these features into the design shelters the entry and softens it at the same time.

Replacing the straight walk which nobody used, are two-feet by three-feet concrete paver, installed in a staggered pattern from driveway to the entry court, a more logical pathway than the original, and many times more attractive.

Airborne Dish Caught Her Fancy

By MARY MOORE

Mrs. L. I. writes: "While on a round trip with my 8-year-old baby, between Winnipeg and Toronto I had in-flight meals which were piping hot and delicious. With your genius, I wonder if the dessert could be copied: a custard cream topped with subtly flavored whipped topping mocha or coffee and Brazil nut curls."

This so-called genius was uncertain about the custard cream so took courage in hand and wrote to the airline company's kitchens describing the requested dessert. In due time the Tia Maria Trifle recipe arrived in the mail and I made it up with three variations.

BAVARIAN CREAM
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 tbsp. plain gelatine
¼ cup cold water
4 eggs.
¼ cup sugar.
1 cup orange juice (or milk or water).
3 tbsp. lemon juice.
½ pt. (10-oz.) whipping (32%) cream.
3 tbsp. Cointreau or Tia Maria (optional).
Toasted coconut (optional).
Pineapple chunks (optional).
Shaved Brazil nuts (optional).

In a large bowl soak the gelatine in the cold water. In top of a double boiler mix well the sugar and eggs, then stir in orange juice (or water or milk) and lemon juice and cook stirring constantly over boiling water until it thickens to consistency of soft custard. It does not thicken much. Remove from heat. Pour over soaked gelatine and stir to dissolve gelatin. Chill until consistency of liquid honey. Whip cream until stiff. Reserve about ¾ cup of the whipped cream for topping later and fold the remainder into slightly set Bavarian Cream.

If you have chosen the orange juice as the liquid now fold in the Cointreau if used. If you have chosen the milk or water fold in Tia Maria, if used.

Spoon into stemmed or parfait glasses and top with rosette of reserved whipped cream and a chunk of pineapple rolled in toasted coconut. Or finish with curls of Brazil nuts or semi-sweet chocolate.

With all of the options included in the above recipe I hope Mrs. L. I. achieves the coveted dessert she ate on her flight.

Dental Floss, Daily Brushing Will Help Free Teeth of Decay

MONTREAL (CP) — No amount of brushing will keep teeth free of decay unless unwaxed dental floss is used daily, says Dr. Earl M. Hershenfield, a lecturer in periodontics at McGill University.

"Brushing will not prevent teeth from decaying even if a person brushes after every bite of food because a brush is unable to get between teeth where plaque (accumulated bacteria) collects," Dr. Hershenfield told a meeting of dentists in Montreal.

As it takes about 24 hours for plaque to form, there is no point in brushing or using floss more than once a day.

"The only value to be found in toothpaste is among those which contain fluoride," and even that is minimal because the strength of fluorine diminishes during the manufacturing process.

Periodontal or gum disease affects 50 per cent of all children and 95 per cent of adults, Dr. Hershenfield said. What concerns him is that it is 100 per cent preventible if the public is educated about their teeth.

Most people accept bleeding gums as a natural sign of aging, he said, but "it is not normal."

Also not correct are assumptions that apples will clean teeth and that a woman's teeth suffer during pregnancy.

Exploding such myths is part of the education process, said Dr. Hershenfield.

"My main concern is the children. We work with mothers, teaching them how children should brush their teeth and how to use dental floss.

"Softness is the only criterion on a person should consider when buying a toothbrush. A soft brush is the only kind which should be used.

"But as I've said, brushing alone will not prevent decay since 85 per cent of all decay takes place in areas a brush can't reach. That's why floss assumes such importance."

Money Is Bad for You— Science Has Now Proved It

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You may be excused if you haven't kept up to date on all the things that are bad for you. It would take a computer memory bank to do that.

One evil you must have known about before — it'll come as no surprise.

Some centuries later Timothy, a disciple of St. Paul, went so far as to say that "the love of money is the root of all evil."

George Bernard Shaw subsequently twisted this to read, "lack of money is the root of all evil."

Now, Drs. Berel L. Abrams and Norton G. Waterman of the University of Louisville school of medicine have produced evidence that Sophocles and Timothy were maybe right and Shaw maybe wrong.

With their hands out in the name of science, Abrams and Waterman "borrowed" 62 pennies, 38 nickels, 27 dimes, 33 quarters, and 50 bills of small denomination.

They did their panhandling, according to the American Medical Association, "with no discrimination as to age, sex, color, or religion on the lender so the results would be unbiased."

They cultured their pickings in some sort of scientific broth and discovered that 13 per cent of the coins and 42 per cent of the bills were "contaminated by potentially disease-causing bacteria." The small coins and bills were more contaminated than the larger, because of more rapid turnover.

Repair Man Helps Out

Some city stores are interested only in selling as many 10-speed bicycles as possible, not in seeing them properly assembled or helping the buyer use them properly, says Mrs. John Clay, president of the Victoria branch of the Consumers Association of Canada. "It seems that the only person who can or will take time to explain anything is the repair man," she said. "The salesman is so busy selling he's neglected to find out anything about the bike."

PHILIPPINE President Ferdinand E. Marcos moved this week to create a government-protected reservation for the world's only race of cave dwellers. Cave homes of the 24 surviving members of the Tasaday "lost tribe," who live in a rain forest area 580 miles southeast of Manila, were discovered last month by an expedition which included American aviation pioneer Gen. Charles A. Lindbergh.

According to Louis Pasteur, the famous French chemist and bacteriologist, wine is the most healthful and most hygienic beverage.

Fortunately, you don't have to be rich to enjoy Canadian wine with your meals. To increase your know-how about our domestic wines, where they are grown, how to store and serve them and which kind goes best with what food, read Canadian Wine — A Guide to Enjoyment.

This 20-page booklet also tells you how to open a bottle of sparkling wine without having it bubble all over the place. Equally helpful is the glossary of wine names and terms. You will also delight in the clever aphorism about the virtues of wine.

The French say that dinner without wine is like a day without sunshine. May you have sunshine every day — at least on your table.

Protesters Make Point About Noise

MARKHAM, Ont. (CP) — People or planes, a citizens' group fighting a proposed new Toronto airport in Pickering Township, was warned by police to keep down the noise Saturday.

A sound truck rented by the group was broadcasting the recorded whine of jets at the same noise level residents in this community northeast of Toronto would hear if a jet took off from the airport.

The Mercedes-Benz 250 feels more like a sports car than the sedan it is. It should. Its engineering far more closely resembles that of a true sports car than a typical sedan.

Breeze through some mountain curves and feel it obediently react to your every whim. You'll experience the exhilaration of really driving again.

The secret is in the balance of the machine. The 2.8-liter overhead-cam engine is so efficient it develops almost one horsepower from each cubic inch of displacement. Result: a powerplant that doesn't pay for its performance in excessive weight or gasoline consumption.

Yet, the brakes are engineered to be even stronger than the engine. And the all-independent suspension system is one of the most advanced designs ever employed in a passenger car. Front: unequal-length A-arms and anti-sway bar to reduce body lean in corners. Rear: Daimler-Benz diagonal-pivot axle and anti-sway bar.

This superb blend of components has made its mark among automotive editors who test scores of cars each year. Typical was the reaction of an expert from Car & Driver after thoroughly testing the 250.

"Offhand, I can't think of any other four-door sedan in the world—with the possible exception of the Maserati Quattroporte — that handles, steers and stops like the Mercedes."

Quite a compliment. But then the 250 is quite an automobile.

Achievement Runner-Up

Cindy Majocha, 15, of 1741 Kisber, was first runner up in the Miss Junior Achievement of B.C. contest held recently in Vancouver.

She holds the executive position of secretary in her Junior Achievement company CANUX. She will travel to Calgary in August to participate in the national Junior Achievement Conference and to compete for the national award.

Strike Threatens Oscar Blackout

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The ballots are counted and it's Academy Award night, but a labor dispute could black out television coverage of tonight's 44th annual Oscar presentations in the United States and 38 other countries.

Five hundred members of a stagehands union, Stage Employees Alliance Local 33, voted Sunday to strike against the television networks, including NBC, which is showing the Academy Awards. But the union members were waiting final authorization today from their national headquarters.

An NBC spokesman said the telecast would go on without the stagehands. But if related-behind-the-scenes unions also walked out as the stagehands predicted, "we can't say what the impact would be," the spokesman said.

The union says it was coincidental that the strike vote came the day before Oscar night. The dispute over pay-and-contract length goes back to July 31, when the contract was to expire, a spokesman said.

SHOW WILL GO ON

Despite the strike threat, the two-hour Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences show will go on before a live audience of 2,900 at the Los Angeles Music Centre Pavilion.

George C. Scott and Glenda Jackson, winners last year, are up for repeats. And the best-picture race is a bewildering mix with no sure-fire favorites.

A television blackout would mean that the world would not see live one of the most historic reconciliations in Hollywood's history—the presentation of a special award to 82-year-old comedian Charlie Chaplin after 20 years of exile from the United States.

PICTURES NOMINATED

Chaplin has returned from Switzerland with his wife Oona to receive an Oscar for "the incalculable effect he has had on making motion pictures the art form of the century."

Winners of the Oscars are chosen by secret ballots of the academy's 3,068 voting members. Nominees for the best picture of 1971 are:

—A Clockwork Orange, advertised as "about a man who loves ultraviolence, rape and Beethoven." It won the New York Film Critics' awards for best picture and direction, by Stanley Kubrick.

—The French Connection, a slam-bang contemporary melodrama about two New York detectives on the trail of smuggled narcotics.

Peter Finch, who plays a homosexual doctor in Sunday Bloody Sunday is among the best-actor nominees. Others are Gene Hackman, a relentless detective in French Connection; Walter Matthau, unwanted widower of Kotch; George C. Scott as the harried medical chief of The Hospital; and Topol as the milkman philosopher of Fiddler.

Glenda Jackson, who won last year for Women in Love, is again a best-actress nominee as the love competitor in Sunday Bloody Sunday.

Favored in the category is Jane Fonda as the call-girl in Klute. Her competitors are all Britons—Mrs. Jackson; Julie Christie as an Old West madam in McCabe and Mrs. Miller; Vanessa Redgrave in Mary, Queen of Scots, and Janet Suzman in Nicholas and Alexandra.

Hydrangeas Are Not Hard to Grow

The fact hydrangeas are sold in four and five-inch pots, already with one, two or three-flower heads should convince any gardener that the plants are not difficult to grow.

They have globular trusses anywhere from five to 10 inches in diameter, and they may be blue, dark red, pink or white.

Although sold as pot plants, these hydrangeas are hardy garden shrubs here on southern Vancouver Island. They are all selections of the original hydrangea hortensis, not hybrids, and are produced from cuttings taken early in the year for growing under ideal greenhouse conditions.

Other kinds of hydrangeas are not grown as potted plants.

While you have your Easter pot hydrangeas in bloom, remember that all are water lovers. They wilt while you look at them if the water supply becomes used up by the warm temperature of the house. You may need to give a cup full more than once daily.

If wilting occurs more than once, the leaves yellow and the flowers fade. With sufficient water, the plant lasts for weeks.

The fact that all the flowers in the cultivated forms are sterile (not capable of producing seed, indeed they lack all seed producing organs), is one reason for their long life.

This applies only to the ball-shaped hydrangeas, whether in pots or in gardens. They are H. macrophylla (large leaved) hortensis (of the garden), and quite different to the five other species to be seen cultivated in local gardens, but never in pots.

Hydrangea hortensis (a short version of its name for quick but accurate identification) needs quite different garden culture than do the other species.

When your potted plant finally loses its beauty, keep the soil well dampened, put it in a cool light place indoors until night temperatures stay around the 50s. Then transfer to garden.

If you have no garden, repot about the beginning of May into a two-inch larger pot, using a rich mixture of old manure, compost and one teaspoon of fertilizer such as 6-8-6.

To keep a pot hydrangea blue, water with a solution of potassium aluminum sulphate (alum) at the rate of one measuring teaspoon to one gallon of water or a quarter teaspoon to one quart. This will not be needed during the current flowering period, but a repotted plant can be started on this treatment once each week after new growth begins until the flowers are fully opened.

A pink hydrangea hortensis should remain pink so long as it receives none of the alum. Even a trace of it in the garden soil will tend to turn a good pink into a muddy shade. This tendency can be counteracted by watering with lime in the water, and with bonemeal in the potting soil.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In the first two decades of this century (before the days of contract bridge, which was invented by the late Harold S. Vanderbilt in 1925), the principle American authority on the original game of bridge and on the early form of action bridge was Joseph B. Elwell. His partnership with Vanderbilt was considered the strongest in the United States between 1910 and 1920.

Elwell never did get to play any contract bridge, for he was murdered in New York City on June 11, 1920. His murder has never been soved, and his case is one of the very few unsolved murders in New York City's record book.

Who his murderer was will probably never be known, but I am certain that it was not his partner in the deal presented today, in which Elwell was the South declarer. The hand arose in a high-stake auction-bridge game and Elwell's partner (not Vanderbilt) made a small fortune because of Elwell's excellent play. And, from what I hear, even in 1920, one did not kill a goose that lays golden eggs. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

The bidding is as it occurred, and was correct. In auction bridge, declarer's side was credited with the number of tricks won, whether contracted for or not. Thus, if one contracted for eight tricks, and made 12, he got credit for a small slam.

West's opening lead of the club king was ruffed by Elwell. A diamond to the king was led next, after which dummy's remaining diamond was returned, East putting up the nine. Elwell allowed the nine to win the trick, West discarding a heart.

East came back with the two of trumps, South winning the trick with his king. Declarer's remaining low diamond was then ruffed with dummy's ace of trumps. South's return to his own hand via the heart king, and picked up the outstanding trumps. The rest of the tricks belonged to him.

Had Elwell put up the diamond ace on the second diamond lead, West would have ruffed the trick. While declarer could then have ruffed one of his remaining low diamonds with the trump ace, he would still have a diamond loser remaining; and he would not have won credit for a small slam.

By playing as he did, Elwell gave up on a grand slam (influenced no doubt by the fall of West's diamond 10 on the initial diamond lead), but he assured the making of a small slam.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Uncle Fred emptied an envelope on to the table. "Stamps I collected for you two kids," he said. "Ninety in all."

"Thanks a lot." Jill started picking. "Half each?"

"Not exactly," replied Fred. "You must share them in the proportion of a half to Jack and a third for you. He's older."

How would that be?

(Answer tomorrow)

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Food Allergies, Cankers Linked

Many people complain of canker sores — the little white painful patches in the mouth, which last usually for five days. I fear that a person can seldom get relief from any medicine, because canker sores are commonly due to food sensitiveness. Unfortunately, I do not see articles on the subject mentioning the possibility of food allergy.

For the first 50 years of my life canker sores would torture me for five days and then clear away on their own. Finally I had sense enought to keep a record of unusual foods that I had eaten just before I got a sore. What I saw on my diet record was that just before every canker sore, I had eaten chocolate. I stopped eating chocolate, and since then I have had only one canker sore, when inadvertently, in a friend's home, I bit into a white candy, not realizing that it was white chocolate.

I would advise all canker sore sufferers to keep this type of record; they may then find that the sores are due to chocolate, as mine are, or to tomatoes, pineapple, banana, pork, peanuts, or some other food. With the exclusion of a trouble-making food, the patient can be free of distress. Colds are said to be an occasional cause, also psychic strains.

That great expert on epilepsy, my dear friend Dr. Frederic Gibbs, of Chicago, has often said to me that after having seen hundreds of children with convulsions, he knows that many lose their convulsive tendency as they grow older, perhaps during their 20s.

According to researchers at the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, children who for 15 years have been kept free from convulsions by good drug treatment, will often go on without seizure after going off the medicine.

Of 148 convulsive children who had been taking anti-convulsive remedies for at least four years, only 24 per cent suffered more attacks after the medicine was stopped.

One of my greatest joys during my last 40 years of practice has been the bringing of an end to convulsions in many children. Such children had been irritable and ill-tempered, due to the nature of their disease. Or they were unable to sit still are concentrate on school work long enough to keep up with their class. Perhaps they were a disruptive element in class, so that the teacher had asked the parents to keep them home from school. But, few days after taking diphenylhydantoin or deanol, they were able to go back to the classroom, considerably changed and with a great improvement in their behavior.

KNIT & CHAT

By MAY E. Mac LEAN

Several readers have written to ask where they can obtain crochet and macrame lessons, and this is rather hard for me to answer, as my column appears in eighteen Canadian newspapers, right across the country.

However, one reader wrote with an idea, saying that last year she attended crochet classes at the YWCA, and how much she was enjoying doing crochet and making many lovely things. So for those of you that need a practical lesson, and to be shown "how to," check with your local "Y," and also the recreational department of the local adult education programme. The chances are that they are offering a course in both these subjects, as they are very popular right now.

For those of you that can't spare the time to go to courses, I do have an excellent leaflet, giving complete directions with lots of details and illustrations, even for left handed people too. This leaflet is No. 6870 Learn to Crochet.

Another letter this week was asking for advice on picking up stitches around a neckline that was just a little too big. In a case such as this, I would work a row of single crochet with matching yarn all round the neck edge, trying without actually gathering, to hold the neckline into shape. You will find it simplier, easier and neater, to then pick up the stitches, passing the needle through the top of the single crochets.

If you would like it still smaller, decrease the stitches at even intervals. Remember though that you must have sufficent room to pass your head through, especially if you don't have a back zipper, or front opening.

Another reader, Mrs. Robson of 871 Grosvenor Street, Winnipeg 9, Manitoba, would like to locate a pattern for a pair of "snuggies." These have been requested before for another reader sometime ago, but if you can help Mrs. Robson, with the loan of the instructions, or photostat them for her, I am sure she will be most grateful. Send them to her direct.

This week's pattern is matching raglan cardigans for adults, with the popular V-neckline and roomy pockets. Knitted on number five needles with a new yarn that is slightly thicker than knitting worsted, you can imagine how quickly this cardigan knits up!

Six sizes are given on the one Leaflet, for both men and women, from 32 to 42 inch bust or chest measurement.

To order Leaflet No. 7012 or any other leaflet mentioned in the column, send 50 cents in coin or money order for each one, PLUS a stamped self addressed envelope, long one if possible. Send to May E. Mac Lean, KNIT and CHAT c-o The Times.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers when ordering and to allow about ten days for delivery.

Separatists Work From Inside

RENE LEVESQUE
. . . no federal plan

By JOSEPH McSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque says Quebec separatists will attain their objective by forming a government in their own province, not by electing representatives to the House of Commons.

The leader of the Parti Quebecois—fighting for a sovereign Quebec in economic association with the rest of Canada—spoke in an interview of the federal election expected this year.

The Parti Quebecois is not going to "play the Irish game" with Ottawa, said Mr. Levesque, drawing a comparison with the situation under which Northern Ireland sends MPs to Westminster while also electing a local Parliament with limited powers.

(In an effort to end the outbreak of religious strife in Northern Ireland, the British government has taken over direct rule and suspended operations of the Parliament at Belfast for one year.)

The PQ would take part in the coming campaign "officially, non-electorally" in the sense it will attack federalism and counter federalist claims in any available forum.

But the party would officially support no candidate or party—neither the fledgling Bloc Quebecois, which was considering running separatist candidates for the Commons, nor any other.

MEMBERS ALARMED

Seasoned members of the Parti Quebecois, formed three years ago, are alarmed at the prospect of a hastily-formed Bloc jumping into the federal fray against the existing political machines of the Liberals and other parties.

Mr. Levesque spoke wryly of the Bloc as a "normal, sincere, excitable" group that wanted a piece of the action, comparable to people eager to jump into the pool when the swimming starts.

The trouble is that such people sometimes take the jump only to find the swimming pool empty and so "break their necks," said Mr. Levesque.

Quebec elected no separatists in the last federal election and, anyway, could not win sovereignty by a vote in the 264-member Commons even if the province's 74 seats were all filled with separatists.

Clearly the road to independence lies through Quebec City rather than Ottawa, said Mr. Levesque. He was scornful of the "legitimacy argument" which contends that even if the PQ won power in Quebec, federal authorities could claim the non-separatist MPs in Ottawa represented the true feelings of the province.

This should involve no "psychological handicap," as far as the 45-year-old PQ chief is concerned.

MUST DECIDE

"Legitimacy will be decided by the fact that Quebec will have one government and Ottawa another," he said.

The election of a Quebec PQ government by a "clear-cut majority" would bring about negotiations between the province and Ottawa and it would be up to the "Quebec guys in the Commons to make up their minds."

The PQ existed only in embryonic form when Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberals swept Quebec in the 1968 federal election, and Mr. Levesque said the party's approach to the coming campaign would be three-pronged, not "simplistic."

This involved active, official opposition to federalism but no official backing for any party, whether Bloc Quebecois, New Democratic or any other.

"We must allow for human nature, though," said Mr. Levesque. "Thousands of our members will say they are not going to stand around during two months of political action."

Such members—as taxpayers—will be free to assess candidates on a personal basis, riding by riding, "hopefully with consultation," and give regional support to their choice, regardless of party affiliation.

Advice Due on Riding Academy

R. S. Nairne of Vancouver will attend a special meeting of Oak Bay council tonight to advise on the disposal of the municipally-owned Victoria Riding Academy site.

Nairne's company of architect-planners, McCarter, Nairne and Partners, advised council in February that they were asking too high a price for the 9.3-acre site.

At that time the council was asking $1.3 million. The municipality had paid the academy owners $112,500 for the property in 1965.

Zoned for two nine-storey concrete apartments and eight three-storey frame apartments, the property has twice unsuccessfully been the subject of a competition which would have seen it going to the developer-architect team with the best proposal for over-all development.

There were no bids in either competition.

Nairne's company was one of those that took out an information kit and the letter sent to council was in response to a request to firms, asking why they had not entered the competition.

At a later meeting, council agreed to lower the asking price of the property to $850,000 and seek professional advice on the development.

At tonight's meeting, council will also debate on the holding of a public hearing for developer John Mace's proposed development of the Windsor block, bounded by Windsor, Goodwin, Currie and Newport.

$47 Million Taken In Embezzlement

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — Federal officials said Friday the First National Bank of Cartersville is missing $47 million in cash and securities in what apparently is the largest embezzlement scheme ever uncovered in the south.

U.S. Attorney E. Ray Taylor Jr. said the justice department will seek indictments against Lamar B. Hill, the former bank president, in connection with the loss.

Hill has already been accused of misapplying $62,000 and freed on a $25,000 bond.

Taylor said another federal warrant has been issued against Hill, charging he made a false entry of $200,000 on the bank's books.

Hill was reportedly in Florida for the weekend but was expected to turn himself in to federal officials for a preliminary hearing on the false-entry charge.

Heritage Group Forms

The formation of the Capital Region Heritage Foundation will take place 8 p.m. Friday at a meeting in the auditorium of South Park school near Beacon Hill Park.

Earlier attempts to form the group were stalled when members discovered the existence of a group with similar aims, the Greater Victoria Historic Building Foundation.

Spokesman Sam Bawl said today that invitiations have been sent to all GVHBF members, asking them to attend Friday's meeting.

The foundation hopes to extend the scope of its activities to include the preservation of heritage as well as historic buildings, following a program outline similar to that used in Ottawa.

First Degree Performance

On Wednesday at 8 p.m. cellist George Kiraly, accompanied by pianist Alison Marshall, will play the University of Victoria's first degree performance in MacLaurin Auditorium.

The concert is a partial fulfilment for a bachelor of music degree in performance. Each performance major is required to present a solo concert before receiving his degree.

Kiraly is currently a fourth-year performance major with the University of Victoria department of music. Prior to his two years at UVic, he studied in California, Washington and Florida. In Victoria he studies under James Hunter, principal cellist in the Victoria Symphony, and Kiraly plays assistant-principal cellist in the symphony.

From UVic, Kiraly, 22, plans to move on to the University of Western Ontario to study under Tsuyoshi Tsutsumi, who was one of the guest soloists with the Victoria Symphony earlier this year.

The program will include works for cello and piano by Boccherini, Beethoven, Shostakovich and Debussy.

Benefits Explained

Two represenatives of the United States' social security administration will be here from Port Angeles Thursday, April 20, to answer inquiries about benefits under the American social security program.

Lyle R. Grisham and John VanSant will be at the immigration office in the new Canadian Pacific dock building, 254 Belleville, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Benefits are generally payable to both American and Canadian citizens if sufficient credit has been earned under the U.S. social security or railroad programs.

Boat Found, All Safe

The Pronto was found at Seal Island about 10 a.m. this morning. All aboard were safe.

Censor Review

EDMONTON (CP) — The government said it intends to name a nine-member legislature committee to review, "in all its forms," existing censorship legislation and practices in Alberta.

Don Getty, minister of federal and inter-governmental affairs, said the committee will look into the policies and principles underlying censorship and submit its report before Nov. 15, 1972.

Job Ad Queried

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta labor department is investigating an advertisement placed in a Calgary newspaper offering "thousands of highly-paid jobs" which would be a "working holiday" in the United States.

The advertisement was aired in the legislature by Roy Wilson (SC — Calgary, Bow), who said he wanted to determine whether a fee is involved and, if so, whether anyone who paid a fee would be assured of a job.

Farm Protection

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government intends to stop conglomerates from entering into both the production and marketing phases of agriculture, Agriculture Minister Hugh Horner said.

School Bus Picket Threatened

HUMBOLDT, Sask. (CP) — Striking school bus drivers in the Humboldt school unit may set up picket lines to try to halt the movement of buses if some area residents are successful in their application for licences to operate the idle vehicles, a Canadian Union of Public Employees official said.

Ross Hale, representing the union on behalf of the 50 drivers, said the actions by the people involved represented "strike breaking."

The drivers walked out March 16 in support of demands for job security and wage parity with Prince Albert area drivers. The strike affected 1,500 children who are being transported to school by car pools and some buses that have been kept running.

Haircuts Rise

EDMONTON (CP) — The price of men's haircuts goes up 50 cents in Edmonton Monday to $2.50 in organized shops.

The boost here follows a similar 50-cent increase at the start of the year in Calgary shops that have membership in the Alberta Barbers Association.

Abortion Voluntary

WINNIPEG (CP) — The provincial government has no intention of coercing hospitals in Manitoba to establish abortion committees, Premier Ed Schreyer told the legislature Friday.

Replying to a question from Joe Borowski (NDP—Thompson), Schreyer said it was not the policy of the government to force any hospital opposed to abortions to perform them.

Medicare Expanded

SASKATOON (CP) — Effective immediately, the Saskatchewan hospital services plan will pay the full amount of the costs of outpatient services provided to Saskatchewan residents outside the province, Health Minister Walter Smishek said Saturday.

Smishek said under present regulations the plan pays only 85 per cent of the costs charged by hospitals for services to those travelling outside the province's boundaries.

Summer Jobs

WINNIPEG (CP) — About 3,100 students in the Prairie provinces will be provided with summer employment under the Department of National Defence program to employ 15,000 students across Canada between May and September.

The defence department announced today that $2 million has been allocated to the Prairie region for the employment program. The department is spending a total $10.4 million on the project.

Freeway on Skids?

EDMONTON (CP) — The president of the Canadian Automobile Association says his organization is concerned that an Edmonton freeway project now under way may be halted just as Toronto's Spadina project was.

Bill Elliott, of Regina, said it is possible that some alternatives to freeways should be considered. "But we suspect many attacks on freeways are rather mindless, without attacking the problem of transportation as a whole."

Transit Holds On

EDMONTON (CP) — This city has managed better than most other North American cities because its public transit system has survived the era of massive freeway construction, a municipal official said Saturday.

City transportation director Don MacDonald said the Edmonton transit system's 40 million paid fares a year compares favorably with other North American systems and the ETS still has reasonably low fares, good wage conditions and good equipment.

'TEACHERS TO GET BROTHERS'

TRAIL (CP) — Burt Campbell, Social Credit member of the legislature for Revelstoke-Slocan, said he expects British Columbia teachers will make an all-out effort in the next provincial election to defeat Education Minister Donald Brothers.

Campbell's comment was made in an address at a Social Credit nominating meeting here that named Brothers to again contest the riding of Rossland-Trail.

He said the B.C. Teachers Federation will spend thousands of dollars to bring down Brothers. He predicted that should an election be called during the summer, teachers will be brought into Trail-Rossland from throughout the province to knock on doors in an effort to ensure Brothers' defeat.

Custodians Accept

VANCOUVER (CP) — Engineer-custodians in Vancouver public schools have voted 80 per cent in favor of accepting a settlement proposal which would give them an eight-per-cent pay increase in a one-year contract.

The new contract would give the 220 members of the operating engineers union a starting salary of $635 a month, retroactive to Jan. 1, and a top salary of $941 a month.

Must Pay Price

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — Walter Raudsepp, chairman of the British Columbia Pollution Control Board, said that if society is serious about the maintenance of environmental quality, "We must accept a serious change in our living habits."

Raudsepp, who also is deputy minister for water resources, said that "in B.C. we are getting people from other areas of Canada with lower economic growth rates.

He quoted Lands Minister Ray Williston as saying the cost of upgrading all existing pollution discharges to a satisfactory level would be $750 million $1,500 for each householder in the province.

Baby Giraffe

PENTICTON (CP) — The first giraffe ever born in British Columbia — a 120-pound male — was born at the Okanagan Game Farm near here at the weekend.

Game farm officials said the giraffe was on its feet in about 20 minutes. It is only the second to be born in captivity in Canada.

Park Fatality

VANCOUVER (CP) — The death of a pedestrian Saturday in Stanley Park has resulted in a charge of criminal negligence against a North Vancouver man.

Donald Scagel, 19, was charged after a car went out of control on the Stanely Park causeway and struck and killed Harder Derkson, 46, of no fixed address.

No Decision

VANCOUVER (CP) — SPEC — The Society for Pollution and Envoronmental Control — Sunday delayed for two weeks a decision to accept or reject the resignation of its executive director, Derrick Mallard.

Mallard and his wife Gwen, co-founders of the organization, resigned last Wednesday, saying they are dissatisfied with the "operations, efficiency and decorum of SPEC."

The society, at its annual general meeting this weekend, was reluctant to accept the Mallards' notice and instructed its executive council to hold closed hearings into the matter.

Telegram Sent

BURNABY (CP) — The British Columbia branch of the Canadian Railway Pension Association met Sunday and sent a telegram to union leaders asking for increased pensions.

About 200 persons attended the meeting, and organizers said almost all joined in condemning the railway pension, which, organizers said, was lower than the pension given to civil servants.

Chance to Debate

QUESNEL (CP) — Resources Minister Ray Williston told a meeting of Cariboo ranchers here that any government decision to end the sale of crown land would be brought back for them to "have a chew on before any changes are put into effect."

About 75 persons attended the weekend meeting, called by the Quesnel Agricultural Land Use Committee after Williston recently announced that beginning next year crown land will only be available on a lease basis.

Williston assured ranchers that compensation would be paid for improvements if land leased with option to buy were taken by the government.

Third Planner Quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robin Kennard became the third man to resign within nine months from the city of Vancouver's five-man special projects division of the planning department Sunday saying the work wasn't as creative as he thought it would be when he accepted a post with the city after resigning from the Ontario provincial government.

Quake Rips Iran; 4,000 Likely Dead

Times News Services

TEHRAN — A cataclysmic earthquake struck Southern Iran today, levelling the crude adobe farming huts in dozens of villages and burying thousands of people in the rubble. A witness said it hit "like the end of the world on judgment day."

Marouchet Pirouz, governor-general of Fars province where the earthquake struck along a 250-mile long area, said between 2,000 and 4,000 persons were killed and perhaps more. The area is about 610 miles south of Terhran.

(In Rockville, Md., the U.S. national earthquake information centre said the quake registered 7.0 on the open-ended Richter scale but witnesses from the are said the quake had an intensity measure of 9.5, which would be one of the heaviest on record.)

Helicopter rescue teams flew to the area and began pulling bodies from beneath the debris. The Shah of Iran ordered six army planes to the area and sent his brother, Prince Mahmoud Reza, to the province to assist in relief operations.

"We saw a woman with two of her children in her arms being pulled out dead from under rubble," a witness said. "There was even a woman who had just delivered a child. It was a gruesome sight."

The quake struck at 5:37 a.m. local time.

Dust columns rose from the villages of Thir and Karzin, near the quake centre. The surrounding mountains apparently were still sliding, officials reported afte. viewing the scene from the air.

"The earthquake was so devastating and has levelled so many homes — in as many as 30 villages —that it will take days to find out the death toll," Gov. Pirouz said.

Reports reaching Tehran indicated most of the victims were women and children caught in their primitive mud-brick houses. Many of the men were apparently en route to the fields when the quake struck.

Iran's last catastrophic quake was the one in the eastern part of the country in 1968. Another in 1962 killed more than 15,000 persons around Qazvin, northwest of Tehran.

The region is mainly agricultural. After four years of drought, it recently suffered a record snowfall that buried farmers and their cattle in drifts of up to 20 feet.

Tremors from the earthquake reached British Columbia, but only just.

A seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on West Saanich Road said today a "faint seismic trace" was recorded here about 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

McCoy Led to Arraignment

Hijack Money Found

Times News Service

The FBI today announced recovery of $499,970 in the home of a sky-diving college student held in the hijacking of a United Air Lines jet last week.

The disclosure came in a list submitted by the FBI to the U.S. magistrate on the results of a Sunday search of the Provo, Utah, home of Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

In a second case in San Diego a man tried unsuccessfully to pull off a hijacking Sunday, making ransom and parachute demands similar to those used earlier by the Colorado hijacker.

UNARMED

Arrested in San Diego was a man identified as Stanley Harlan Speck, 31, of San Francisco, who was captured less than an hour after a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 was ordered by a hijacker to set down at Lindbergh Field here.

Speck, nabbed by federal agents as he stepped off the plane, was booked for investigation of air piracy and interfering with a flight crew.

Smith . . . 'No Radio, No Nothing'

'JUST LIKE VIKINGS'

TSAWWASSEN (CP) — A tiny styrofoam sailboat that represents a $236 investment for Laing Smith, 27, of Ladner, set off from near this lower mainland ferry terminal Saturday on what Smith plans as a round-the-world cruise.

The departure, delayed from earlier in the day by 25-knot winds around the B.C. ferry causeway, started Smith on a voyage which he expects will take 2½ years.

His 11½-foot craft weighs less than 100 pounds fully loaded and he claims it's virtually unsinkable, although the furthest he had been in the past is Sooke.

"I've got no radio, no nothing," Smith said. "This will be strictly Viking style, although I'm smart enough to take a compass along.

"I'll mostly be living on seafood all the way, but I've got emergency rations for 40 days."

He intends to stay close to shorelines where possible, heading up the B.C. coast, along the Aleutian Islands, down the Asian coast, around India and Africa, up to Europe, across the Atlantic and around South America back to Vancouver. There have been no reports on his present position.

B-52s Make Deepest Raid

Times News Services

United States B-52 bombers returned to the air war over North Vietnam today for the first time in more than four years and hit targets around the big coastal city of Vinh, 145 miles northwest of the so-called demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam. (See also Page 2.)

It was the deepest penetration of North Vietnam ever made by B-52s, the biggest U.S. bombers.

U.S. planes have made 225 bombing strikes on North Vietnam since last Thursday.

A U.S. military spokesman said the 225 strikes in the north were conducted on airfields, "airfield activity," anti-aircraft artillery and missile sites, roads, bridges and storage sites.

The pilots encountered heavy ground fire, including 50 North Vietnamese surface-to-air missiles seen set off, he said. But they reported touching off many explosions on the ground.

They also reported long lines of tanks, supply trucks and more and more anti-aircraft guns and missile launchers strung out along Highway 1 north of the DMZ.

Military sources said the B52 strikes were ordered personally by President Nixon as part of the retaliatory air strikes against the invasion into Quang Tri province in the extreme northeastern section of South Vietnam. Monsoon rain and clouds prevented fighter-bombers from hitting the target areas today.

South Vietnam's commander on the northern front, Lt.-Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, said his forces had crushed the spearhead of the 12-day Communist offensive across the DMZ and turned the tide of battle.

But there was no letup in the North Vietnamese attack north of Saigon and the South Vietnamese command ordered another 20,000 troops into the battle for An Loc, 56 miles north of the capital.

Despite Lam's hopeful assessment, Associated Press correspondent Richard Pyle reported from the front that North Vietnamese troops made their closest penetration toward Quang Tri City, 19 miles below the DMZ, moving to within a mile northwest of the provincial capital before they were stopped. The Communist company of 100 or more troops suffered an es-

CTV CREW SUSPENDED

MONTREAL (CP) — Nearly 700 CBC radio and television technicians were locked off their jobs today because of failure to provide coverage of Sunday night's National Hockey League game between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

At the same time, a 21-man TV crew for CFCF-TV, affiliated with the CTV network, have been suspended for walking off their jobs Sunday night in sympathy with their CBC counterparts. (Earlier story on Page 12.)

Queen Real Shocker

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Times warned Queen Elizabeth of probable shocks during her state visit to France next month.

A survey by the paper of gossip that has appeared about her over the years in the French press showed she had been pregnant 92 times, suffered 149 accidents, had nine miscarriages and gone on the pill 11 times.

That's not all:

She has abdicated 63 times and been on the point of breaking up with her husband Prince Philip, 73 times.

She has been rude to the Queen of Iran 11 times, to Princess Grace of Monaco six times and to Queen Fabiola of Belgium twice.

The study said the French press had reported her on the verge of a nervous breakdown 32 times, afflicted by 43 unhappy nights, and 27 nightmares. There have been 27 attempts on her life, but her top score in French headlines went to her relationship with brother-in-law Lord Snowdon: She's reported to have ejected from court 151 times.

Roy Jenkins Quits

LONDON (UPI) — Roy Jenkins resigned today as deputy head of the Labor Party because of the party's opposition to Britain's impending membership in the European Common Market, political sources said. FIAT HOSTAGE FOUND DEAD

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Oberdan Sallustro, kidnapped Fiat car-company executive, has been found shot to death, Argentine police sources said today.

Sallustro, 57, was kidnapped almost three weeks ago as he was leaving his suburban home.

He was seized by the Trotskyist People's Revolutionary Army which last year kidnapped the honorary British consul in Rosario, Argentina, Stanley Sylvester.

The sources said Sallustro was apparently shot by his Marxist guerrilla kidnappers when police closed in on a "people's prison" in a working district of the city where he was being held.

Two policemen were wounded in a gun battle with the kidnappers, who managed to escape, the sources said.

News of the Fiat executive's death came only hours after a prominent army general was shot dead in a street ambush in Rosario, setting off what could be a major crisis in violence-ridden Argentina.

Maj.-Gen. Juan Carlos Sanchez, commander of the 2nd Army Corps based in Rosario, and in charge of anti-guerrilla operations there, was shot down as he drove to his headquarters.

Toronto Struck, Quebec Waiting

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between management and representatives of 3,750 outside workers in Metropolitan Toronto broke down Sunday night and a strike began at 7 a.m. today.

The strike halted garbage collection in the city. Refuse dispcsal of refuse collected in Metropolitan Toronto's five bcroughs also was stopped.

Ambulance service, water filtration and sewage treatment plants, road and sidewalk repairs and cleaning, parks maintenance and the ferry service to Toronto islands all were affected.

Patrick O'Keefe, national representative of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, called for a public inquiry into which side was at fault in the way bargaining was conducted.

The CUPE negotiators turned down a management offer of a two-year contract raising the basic laborer's wage from $3.58 an hour by 18 cents this year and 15 cents in 1973. The increase would total 9 per cent over two years.

Meanwhile, Quebec laborers face the possibility of a second strike by 210,000 public service employees as a union strategy committee meets to consider the next step in a contract dispute with the Quebec government.

IRA Making Preparations To Hold Own Election

Times News Services

LONDONDERRY — Roman Catholics in the Bogside, Creggan and Brandywell strongholds of Londonderry began preparations for their own "general election" today following new hard-line statements by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

IRA leaders called a rare news conference Sunday to announce their plans for an election. They claimed they had the solid support of the Catholic people of the city for their administrative proposals and for a continued military campaign against the British Army in Northern Ireland.

In Belfast, the Roman Catholic Civil Rights Movement today gave Britain until the end of April to meet its demands or face large-scale "non-violent opposition."

A spokesman Kevin McCorry, told a news conference the organization would consider defying a British ban on marches and resume the demonstrations that often have led to bloody confrontations during nearly three years of violence here.

Meanwhile, William Whitelaw, the new secretary of state for Northern Ireland, ruled out any possibility of talks with the IRA.

He said he could not "agree to talk to those who insist on trying to achieve their ends by violence."

Some 30 Catholic priests Sunday made a call from the pulpit for "peace, reconciliation, negotiation and discussion."

Whitest April on Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — As much as six inches of snow fell on elevated parts of Vancouver late Saturday and early Sunday, covering spring flowers and making this the snowiest April on record.

The weather office at Vancouver International airport recorded 1.4 inches of snow — that fell at times in near-blizzard conditions.

The previous record for all of April was 0.9 inches, set in 1955.

The snow accompanied unseasonably cold weather which has resulted in record low temperatures across British Columbia.

The overnight lows Sunday slumped to 28 at Penticton and a chilly 25 at Kelowna under clear skies.

A new storm, moving down from Alaska, threatens to dump a mixture of rain and snow on the Greater Victoria area tonight.

Chief weather officer in Victoria, Allan McQuarrie, said most of the storm is expected to hit further south but described Victoria's position as "vulnerable."

On the other side of the country many Nova Scotians were digging out in the wake of a weekend storm that dumped between five and 15 inches of snow across the province and all but paralysed road traffic.

The weather office said skies should clear throughout the Atlantic region later today but another disturbance from the central United States is expected to bring more snow and rain to the district Tuesday night.

RCMP urged motorists to stay off highways.

Another storm whipped through central Alberta early Sunday, stalling traffic with up to four inches of snow.

The storm extended from Leduc, just south of Edmonton, to Olds, 45 miles north of Calgary, and reached its peak in the Red Deer-Innisfail area.

RCMP said visibility was to near zero and country roads east and west of Red Deer were blocked during the storm's [illegible] through the district. Light snow was still falling today but highway driving lanes were open.

Mr. Chips Carries On: Dignity, Sir, Dignity

Dear Diary: Well, thank heavens, that Mr. Snodgrass was there at the convention and so once again the gentle teachers of the province have been spared the terrible fate of becoming a great big dirty old undignified union.

Oh, I don't mean Mr. Snodgrass, the man. I mean Mr. Snodgrass the teacher type we all know and love, the sweetheart of the classroom, the Mr. Chips of our own school system. You remember him, don't you? The man with the frayed collar and cuffs in the eight-year-old suit, clanking up to the school in his ancient Austin, too proud to notice all those shiny limousines bringing his pupils to the establishment. How unselfish, how dedicated he was! Hasn't changed a bit, either.

Not for Mr. Snodgrass the crass consideration of a decent wage or one in keeping with his position in society. True, he might have to moonlight a little (I remember the finest history teacher I ever had taking bets at the two-dollar parimutuel window), but, by the Lord Harry, he had dignity.

He might make less than a third of what the average doctor makes and less than half of what a lawyer makes and just exactly half of what a dentist makes, but, after all, he was a professional man, just like them, and it is nice to be a professional man. If his pupils and their parents are not too impressed, perhaps, by a professional man who makes less than a bakery truck driver, well that's just too bad. All the crude bargaining of the trades unionist was for laborers, for millworkers, and terribly degrading.

If he reflected from time to time that he had the bargaining position of a Bolivian tin-miner or that the ground rules for the profession he loved were set by bureaucrats who couldn't teach a dog to fetch a bone, well, at least he knew his real worth in society. Not for sweet, mild, moderate, patient Mr. Snodgrass the nasty, ugly power of the trade union, not even if it meant that the standards of teaching might improve. Strike? Heavens, that would be dreadfully un-professional.

Well, he was there, in force, when the B.C. Teachers' Federation shelved once more the question of becoming a trade union and I, for one, say good for you, Mr. Snodgrass, and carry on Mr. Chips.

Dear Diary: The deep and continuing mystery of why the shareholders of Canadian Pacific don't bloody well insist that their company face up to the coming new age of flight seems even more bewildering than ever with today's announcement from the British High Commissioner's office.

It notes that Braniff International, the Texas-based giant that serves most of the major cities of South America, is no more than six months away from ordering the Anglo-French supersonic jetliner Concorde. Harding Lawrence, the head of the company, is quoted: "We anticipate placing orders for three." It could thus be the first of the eight American airlines, which have placed options on 38 of those magnificent flying machines, to convert to firm orders.

The likelihood is that within three years Braniff will be scheduling special express flights, augmenting its fleet of orthodox jets, out of Los Angeles and New York to the South American capitals. Pilots of the line have completed their first training in Concorde and in simulators. Lawrence says that the company is "thoroughly satisfied" with the airplane's performance.

While Braniff joined the waiting list when Concorde was still a blue-print, CP-Air played it cool and does today because they feel the plane can't be a money-maker.

While Braniff long ago saw that the South American routes were ideal for the twice-the-speed-of-sound Concorde, routes mainly over water or sparsely populated land areas where the sonic boom would present no problem, CP-Air, which flies the same routes, has shown no sign of preparing to meet the eventual competition.

Every study shows that the businessman and, to a lesser extent, the tourist, will pay an extra tariff for speed over the long haul — that's what airlines are all about — and so it's only simple economics to offer a choice through a diversified fleet of aircraft. Concorde alone can offer that choice. It's time CP's shareholders recognized it even if the top brass seemingly never will.

Dear Diary: It's not that I mind sharing a desk with the paper's film critic, but the fellow sees so much symbolism and hidden significance and morality messages into pictures that I sometimes wonder if we've really seen the same show. I seem to have missed all the meaning in The Last Picture Show, The Godfather and Carnal Knowledge, to name just three, though I thought I understood Ann Margaret pretty clearly.

Now I can't wait until he gets back from vacation to find out what I missed in The West Point Story, produced in 1950, that was on the magic eye yesterday afternoon.

What did it really mean when Gordon MacRae, singing alone in that empty rehearsal hall, was suddenly mysteriously accompanied by a 90-piece symphony orchestra? What was the symbolism when that dancer hurt his leg and old James Cagney had to replace him and brought down the house? Why did Doris Day give up her career as a great star to marry MacRae, a humble West Point cadet? How did Doris Day get into West Point anyway? Why was there a happy ending for absolutely everybody?

Back in 1950 that was just the way pictures were, the way we expected them to be, but now I'm not so sure. Were they really trying to tell us something and, if so, what?

Spencer Revisited

After all that fuss last year, the developer now wants more changes

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

The architectural firm, Wade, Stockdill, Armour and Blewett, has asked council for permission to move one of the three apartment blocks approved last year to a position closer to Summit.

Siting and other planning and building details were approved last year and written into a land use contract that has the power of a rezoning decision. Any substantial changes must therefore be treated as zoning changes, city officials said today, resulting in a new hearing.

Council may, however, refuse the request to change the development permit, fearing to set a precedent on land use contracts with developers.

The Spencer Castle project at Cook and Summit found its most vocal opponent in Mayor Peter Pollen who was an alderman at the time of the last approval, Jan. 19, 1971.

Pollen then charged that "subterfuge" and "Conflict of interest" were at work when early details of the Spencer Castle land assembly were completed.

The project is owned by Danzo and Franco Holdings Ltd. The deal included sale by the city of an important 2-acre plot of land on the castle hill for $40,000.

The request for changes in the development permit plans pins the problem to the high cost of rock blasting.

"In order to avoid excessive, and therefore expensive, rock blasting, we would like to move Block A 23 feet north of its present position," the request says.

"The setback of 40 feet to the Cook Street property line would be maintained. The setback to Summit Street would become 51 feet; it was previously 74 feet.

"The construction of the driveway to Block B which is under construction necessitates that the blasting be done, but if Block A were to be relocated the amount of blasting could be reduced as well as preserving two rather fine, large, oak trees.

"Also, at this time we would like to apply for permission to build an open air swimming poool adjacent to the existing house."

City officials said today architects plans of the requested changes were not expected at city hall for inspection until tomorrow. It was not known whether resisting one of the apartment blocks would result in any other changes to the contract plans.

The plans called for three blocks of condominium apartment units at a total cost of $2.5 million.

The land is roughly square in shape. Two blocks were to occupy the north end of the property and one was to be sited in the southwest corner.

At last year's hearing, Pollen was joined by Ald. Tom Christie and Ald. Hugh Ramsay in opposing the development, though each had different reasons for their objections.

The remainder of council approved the project despite heavy representation from residents in the Spencer Castle hill area.

About two years ago, a similar attempt to get the property rezoned failed by a vote of seven to one after local residents organized a protest.

Earlier attempts to rezone and develop the property came in 1967 and 1961. At one point, owners of the Spencer Castle building tried to make a tourist business out of it but the project was closed down.

Port Alberni Developer Danilo Danzo bought the castle property two years ago for about $245,000 after city hall advertised in search of developers for the site.

Goal: $7 Million Arts Centre

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The cost of a centre combining cultural and convention facilities, tentatively planned for the site of the old Crystal Gardens, was pegged today at $6 to $7 million by the chairman of a group pushing for its establishment.

Allan M. Purdy, chairman of the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation, said his group would like to administer the centre, which he hopes will be funded by the provincial and federal governments as well as municipalities on Vancouver Island.

Purdy said a "congress of the arts" held this weekend at the University of Victoria showing strong community support for such a centre and said preliminary negotiations with government authorities will be held in the near future.

Purdy said the city of Regina has been able to get a cultural-convention centre of its own, funded by the city and the Saskatchewan government with assistance from Ottawa.

He said the city of Regina has a population of only 143,000 and their centre cost $7.5 million. "If Vancouver Island, with a population of about 400,000, can't support its own centre, we're in pretty bad shape," Purdy said.

The centre would attempt to bring together all aspects of the arts community, Purdy said, by including non-establishment artists and performers as well as traditional types.

He said the centre would contain a concert hall, a school of music with classrooms and performing areas, a small theatre for specifically local experimental productions, rehearsal rooms, as well as display rooms for arts and crafts.

Purdy said the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation's board of directors should take over direct management of the centre, "for a continuity of philosophy," and said he hopes the government will not step in and run the centre itself.

He said the Saskatchewan government has passed special legislation making itself owner of the Regina centre but had allowed the local arts people to administer the centre.

The proposed hierarchy for management of the centre, Purdy said, would have the board of directors handling financial matters, an executive director responsible for day-to-day decisions and two or three advisory groups such as the Greater Victoria Community Arts Council having a hand in the planning and operation.

The provincial, federal and municipal governments would have to have some say in management, Purdy said, but he hopes the local group would be able to make most of its own decisions after the centre is built.

Discussions on the centre are planned with Waldo Skillings, provincial trade minister, Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace and William Murray, speaker of the house and administrator of B.C.'s cultural fund money.

Purdy said he hopes local artists and craftsmen will be able to use the centre at no charge, using various rooms and foyers to display their works. He said there are few such areas for local talent.

He said city of Victoria officials have indicated support for the proposal and have tentatively agreed to rent the site of the old Crystal Gardens at a nominal cost to the foundation. Further negotiations will be held after the foundation has more concrete proposals to make, Purdy said.

PAPERBOY HURT

A 14-year-old newspaper carrier boy was found unconscious and critically injured beside the Trans-Canada Highway east of the Thetis Lake overpass at 5 a.m. Sunday.

Police said the boy, Charles Stephen Ferguson, of 1552 Trans-Canada Highway, may have been the victim of a hit-run accident. He was taken to Queen Victoria General Hospital with head injuries, cuts and bruises.

A hospital spokesman said today he was in fair condition but still on the hospital's critical list.

A Colwood RCMP officer said police hope to be able to question the boy today, but said he has been "semi-conscious at best" since he was found.

Government Holds Line On Employee Pay Hikes

The provincial government doesn't appear to have bowed to pressure for extra-large salary increases for specific groups within the civil service.

Salary increases approved by the provincial cabinet show the government stuck to its overall salary increasel limit of 6.5 per cent but gave some categories slightly larger increases than others.

The B.C. Government Employees' Uninion asked for increases averaging 11 per cent but requests for specific categories exceeded 20 per cent.

For instance, psychiatric aides received an increase to a minimum of $511 monthly to start and a maximum of $619 while the union asked for $660 for all psychiatric aides.

The increases sought for the psychiatric aides were described by the union as representing a 23 per cent increase. The increases granted were 4.9 per cent at the lowest level and 5.9 at the highest.

A similar shortfall occurred in the category of forest assistant wherei a flat $625 month was sought but a range of $430 to $519 was granted, an increase of about 6.8 per cent at the top levels.

Members of the BCGEU will be voting on their increases later this month in a vote described as a ratification procedure by the union.

Union secretary John Fryer said Friday he expects widespread dissatisfaction among employees as a result of the wage increse limits of the government.

Thief Goes Straight, Loot Turns

Police recovered a stolen $5,000 house trailer — but not the thief — after the man and his loot became separated during a highway chase in Colwood Sunday night.

At 11 p.m. Colwood RCMP gave chase to an old car towing a trailer when the driver failed to respond to an order to stop for a routine check.

At Orono and Knotty Pine, the car's ancient trailer hitch disintegrated. The car continued along Orono and the trailer went along Knotty Pine.

Police discovered the auto abandoned in the 200-block Jacklin. An eyewitness said he saw a long-haired young man fleeing from the stopped car.

The last registered owner of the car, a Sooke woman, said it had been sold for junk a year ago.

Volunteer Boatmen Forming Rescue Service

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Organization of a province-wide army of volunteer boatmen began this week.

The aim of the game — to bridge the growing gap between the accelerating number of marine accidents and lack of adequate search and rescue facilities.

In the planning stage since last December, the new force is called the Civil Defence Marine Service.

Considine, because of his grounding in naval service, drew up the blueprints for this war against needless loss of life on the water, whether it's the ruthless seas around our coast or lakes made treacherous by sudden squalls.

Considine explains how the new army will be marshalled.

Chiefs Sought

"The civil defence co-ordinator in each zone will be contacting experienced boatmen who will be appointed port marine rescue chiefs."

He explains that these chiefs will be the "king pins" in their respective areas. In many cases it could be a marina operator, a staff member of a yacht club, the chief of an Indian fishing village, a cannery operator or a seasoned seaman with a sense of responsibility.

The rescue chiefs, in turn, will select their own force, again making sure that each man has the necessary know-how and a boat capable of handling the situation.

Considine says the decision to form the new force was triggered by the tragic marine incidents of 1971.

"This is our first swing," he says, "but we're trying to bridge the gap and draw on the enormous amount of volunteer rescue power that's around."

Leach reports that he's been getting a lot of "feedback" from the Rescue Co-ordination Centre, asking his department to provide the same sort of rescue volunteer back-up force at sea as it does for land search and rescues.

Wall reports that 16,000 man hours a year are given by volunteers for land search and rescue work.

Lists Posted

He adds, "There's no reason why a man shouldn't get the same amount of help if he gets into trouble on the water."

Considine and his co-planners are well awareof the penalty for lost time when tragedy strikes at sea.

"In order to save the waste of any precious second, lists of the port marine rescue chiefs willbe posted at the rescue centre, RCMP stations and local police units."

Leach reports that several areas, aware of the need for more protection on the water, have already formed their own volunteer rescue force.

These, including ones at Campbell River and Port Alberni, will now be included in the over-all service.

Wall says that, adding to the natural hazards of our unrelenting coastline waters, people flocking to the coast from "unwatered areas" compound the problem of adequate rescue facilities.

"They sell their farm, drugstore or hardware store, come out here and buy a big boat. Some of them are qualified to handle a vessel — many are not."

He is confident that when they realize their more seasoned neighbors are willing to put their boats and lives on the block for them the uninitiated will learn the need for education in the most effective way possible.

"They're good Canadian citizens and not entirely dumb. When they see people willing to do this for a stranger — they'll take a good hard look at themselves."

Members of the volunteer marine service will have to get their kicks out of just that — service. There's no pay, no compensation for fuel or time lost.

They will, however, be covered under the Workmen's Compensation Board when on an assigned search and rescue incident.

They may not even get thanked by the people they rescue.

No Thanks

"The boat was leaking fuel, it was a dangerous situation. The man had a child aboard and the fisherman persuaded him to let the child go aboard his own boat. The man refused to leave. In fact, he insisted on being towed to a certain port.

"The fisherman said he couldn't do that but he would take him to the nearest point where he could get the vessel repaired.

"When they finally came alongside, and tied up there was still no thanks. In fact, the fisherman got sworn at!"

"A litle word of thanks, he placement of the fuel he's used up, that's all it takes.

Low-Lead Plant To Be Expanded

TORONTO (CP) — Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. said it will spend almost $11 million to install Canada's first continuous reforming process at its refinery in nearby Clarkson to enable it to meet anticipated future requirements for gasoline with lower lead content.

Installation of the new unit will double the refinery's reforming capacity to 20,000 barrels a day.

THIS IS THE FIRST of three 30-foot-wide antennas for the NASA Applications Technology Satellite (ATS). Built at Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., Sunnyvale, Calif., the saucer-shaped antenna is constructed of aluminum ribs and mesh that is copper plated and coated with silicone. For the ride into space the ribs and mesh are wrapped around the hub of the antenna. When the satellite arrives on station a signal causes a restraining cable to be cut and the antenna blossoms like a flower. (CP photo.)

Quake Rips Iran; 4,000 Likely Dead

Times News Services

TEHRAN — A cataclysmic earthquake struck Southern Iran today, levelling the crude adobe farming huts in dozens of villages and burying thousands of people in the rubble. A witness said it hit "like the end of the world on judgment day."

Manouchet Pirouz, governor-general of Fars province where the earthquake struck along a 250-mile long area, said between 2,000 and 4,000 persons were killed and perhaps more. The area is about 610 miles south of Terhran.

(In Rockville, Md., the U.S. national earthquake information centre said the quake registered 7.0 on the open-ended Richter scale but witnesses from the area said the quake had an intensity measure of 9.5, which would be one of the heaviest on record.)

Helicopter rescue teams flew to the area and began pulling bodies from beneath the debris. The Shah of Iran ordered six army planes to the area and sent his brother, Prince Mahmoud Reza, to the province to assist in relief operations.

"We saw a woman with two of her children in her arms being pulled out dead from under rubble," a witness said. "There was even a woman who had just delivered a child. It was a gruesome sight."

Officials said most of the dead were women and children.

The quake struck at 5:37 a.m. local time.

Dust columns rose from the villages of Thir and Karzin, near the quake centre. The surrounding mountains apparently were still sliding, officials reported after viewing the scene from the air.

"The earthquake was so devastating and has levelled so many homes — in as many as 30 villages —that it will take days to find out the death toll," Gov. Pirouz said.

Reports reaching Tehran indicated most of the victims were women and children caught in their primitive mud-brick houses. Many of the men were apparently en route to the fields when the quake struck.

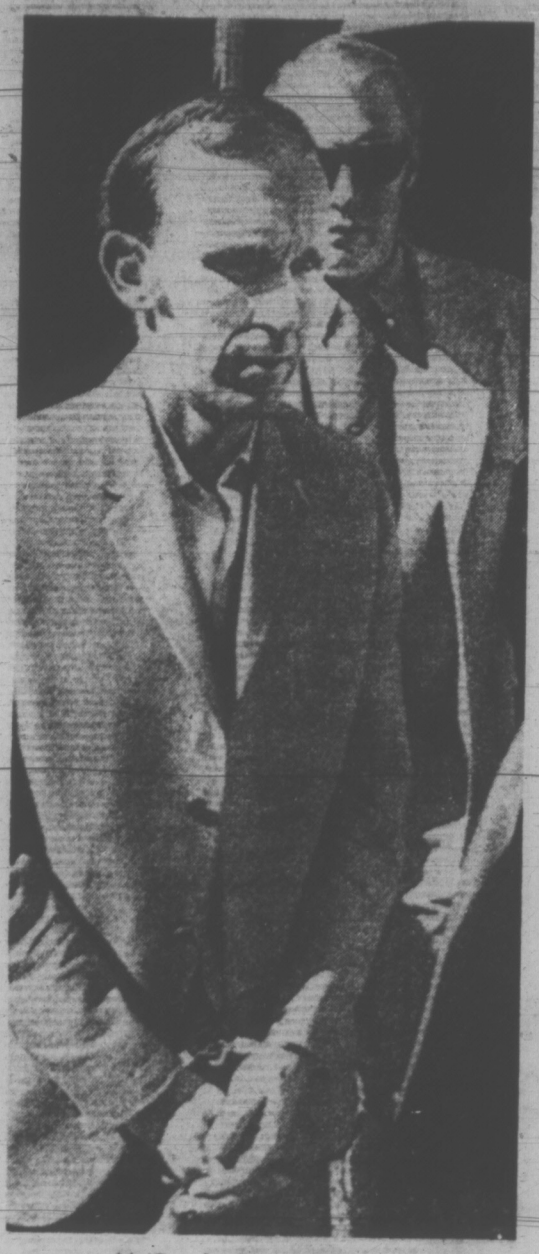
Iran's last catastrophic quake was the one in the eastern part of the country in 1968. Another in 1962 killed more than 15,000 persons around Qazvin, northwest of Tehran.

The region is mainly agricultural. After four years of drought, it recently suffered a record snowfall that buried farmers and their cattle in drifts or up to 20 feet.

Tremors from the earthquake reached British Columbia, but only just.

A seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on West Saanich Road said today a "faint seismic trace" was recorded here about 6:30 p.m. Sunday.



McCoy Led to Arraignment

Hijack Money Found

Times News Service

The FBI today announced recovery of $499,970 in the home of a sky-diving college student held in the hijacking of a United Air Lines jet last week.

The disclosure came in a list submitted by the FBI to the U.S. magistrate on the results of a Sunday search of the Provo, Utah, home of Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a Vietnam veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

In a second case in San Diego a man tried unsuccessfully to pull off a hijacking Sunday, making ransom and parachute demands similar to those used earlier by the Colorado hijacker.

UNARMED

Arrested in San Diego was a man identified as Stanley Harlah Speck, 31, of San Francisco, who was captured less than an hour after a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 was ordered by a hijacker to set down at Lindbergh Field here.

Speck, nabbed by federal agents as he stepped off the plane, was booked for investigation of air piracy and interfering with a flight crew.

Smith . . . 'No Radio, No Nothing'

'JUST LIKE VIKINGS'

TSAWWASSEN (CP) — A tiny styrofoam sailboat that represents a $236 investment for Laing Smith, 27, of Ladner, set off from near this lower mainland ferry terminal Saturday on what Smith plans as a round-the-world cruise.

The departure, delayed from earlier in the day by 25-knot winds around the B.C. ferry causeway, started Smith on a voyage which he expects will take 2½ years.

His 11½-foot craft weighs less than 100 pounds fully loaded and he claims it's virtually unsinkable, although the furthest he had been in the past is Sooke.

"I've got no radio, no nothing," Smith said. "This will be strictly Viking style, although I'm smart enough to take a compass along.

"I'll mostly be living on seafood all the way, but I've got emergency rations for 40 days."

He intends to stay close to shorelines where possible, heading up the B.C. coast, along the Aleutian Islands, down the Asian coast, around India and Africa, up to Europe, across the Atlantic and around South America back to Vancouver. There have been no reports on his present position.

B-52s Make Deepest Raid

Times News Services

United States B-52 bombers returned to the air war over North Vietnam today for the first time in more than four years and hit targets around the big coastal city of Vinh, 145 miles northwest of the so-called demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam. (See also Page 2.)

It was the deepest penetration of North Vietnam ever made by B-52s, the biggest U.S. bombers.

U.S. planes have made 225 bombing strikes on North Vietnam since last Thursday.

A U.S. military spokesman said the 225 strikes in the north were conducted on airfields, "airfield activity," anti-aircraft artillery and missile sites, roads, bridges and storage sites.

The pilots encountered heavy ground fire, including 50 North Vietnamese surface-to-air missiles seen set off, he said. But they reported touching off many explosions on the ground.

They also reported long lines of tanks, supply trucks and more and more anti-aircraft guns and missile launchers strung out along Highway 1 north of the DMZ.

Military sources said the B-52 strikes were ordered personally by President Nixon as part of the retaliatory air strikes against the invasion into Quang Tri province in the extreme northeastern section of South Vietnam. Monsoon rain and clouds prevented fighter-bombers from hitting the target areas today.

South Vietnam's commander on the northern front, Lt.-Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, said his forces had crushed the spearhead of the 12-day Communist offensive across the DMZ and turned the tide of battle.

But there was no letup in the North Vietnamese attack north of Saigon and the South Vietnamese command ordered another 20,000 troops into the battle for An Loc, 56 miles north of the capital.

Despite Lam's hopeful assessment, Associated Press correspondent Richard Pyle reported from the front that North Vietnamese troops made their closest penetration toward Quang Tri City, 19 miles below the DMZ, moving to within a mile northwest of the provincial capital before they were stopped. The Communist company of 100 or more troops suffered an es-

CTV CREW SUSPENDED

MONTREAL (CP) — Nearly 700 CBC radio and television technicians were locked off their jobs today because of failure to provide coverage of Sunday night's National Hockey League game between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

At the same time, a 21-man TV crew for CFCF-TV, affiliated with the CTV network, have been suspended for walking off their jobs Sunday night in sympathy with their CBC counterparts. (Earlier story on Page 12.)

Queen Real Shocker

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Times warned Queen Elizabeth of probable shocks during her state visit to France next month.

A survey by the paper of gossip that has appeared about her over the years in the French press showed she had been pregnant 92 times, suffered 149 accidents, had nine miscarriages and gone on the pill 11 times.

That's not all:

She has abdicated 63 times and been on the point of breaking up with her husband Prince Philip, 73 times.

She has been rude to the Queen of Iran 11 times, to Princess Grace of Monaco six times and to Queen Fabiola of Belgium twice.

The study said the French press had reported her on the verge of a nervous breakdown 32 times, afflicted by 43 unhappy nights and 27 nightmares. There have been 27 attempts on her life, but her top score in French headlines went to her relationship with brother-in-law Lord Snowdon: She's reported to have ejected from court 151 times.

Quebec Unions Call Massive Strike Tuesday

MONTEAL (CP) — The 210,000 Quebec public service workers represented by a common front of three union federations will go out on strike for an undetermined duration beginning Tueday morning, the president of the Quebec Teachers' Corp., announced today.

In announcing the strike, Yvon Charbonneau said the union federations will not respect injunctions the government has obtained to keep workers in essential services on the job.

The strategy committee of the common front, made up of the QTC, the Quebec Federation of Labor and the Confederation of National Trade Unions, will review the situation each day of the strike, he said.

The common front, which represents civil servants and other public servants such as teachers, liquor board employees and hospital workers, staged the first general strike in an effort to back their demands in contract negotiations with the provincial government.

Talks between the unions and the government broke off last Wednesday after Jean-Paul L'Allier, civil service minister, refused a union request that he take part in the talks personally.

Meanwhile negotiations between management and representatives of 3,750 outside workers in Metropolitan Toronto broke down Sunday night and a strike began at 7 a.m. today.

The strike halted garbage collection in the city. Disposal of refuse collected in Metropolitan Toronto's five boroughs also was stopped.

HOSTAGE DEAD

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Oberdan Sallustro, kidnapped Fiat car-company executive, has been found shot to death, Argentine police sources said today.

Sallustro, 57, was kidnapped almost three weeks ago as he was leaving his suburban home.

He was seized by the Trotskyist People's Revolutionary Army which last year kidnapped the honorary British consul in Rosario, Argentina, Stanley Sylvester.

The sources said Sallustro was apparently shot by his Marxist guerrilla kidnappers when police closed in on a "people's prison" in a working district of the city where he was being held.

IRA Making Preparations To Hold Own Election

Times News Services

LONDONDERRY — Roman Catholics in the Bogside, Creggan and Brandywell strongholds of Londonderry began preparations for their own "general election" today following new hard-line statements by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

IRA leaders called a rare news conference Sunday to announce their plans for an election. They claimed they had the solid support of the Catholic people of the city for their administrative proposals and for a continued military campaign against the British Army in Northern Ireland.

In Belfast, the Roman Catholic Civil Rights Movement today gave Britain until the end of April to meet its demands or face large-scale "non-violent opposition."

A spokesman Kevin McCorry, told a news conference the organization would consider defying a British ban on marches and resume the demonstrations that often have led to bloody confrontations during nearly three years of violence here.

Meanwhile, William Whitelaw, the new secretary of state for Northern Ireland, ruled out any possibility of talks with the IRA.

He said he could not "agree to talk to those who insist on trying to achieve their ends by violence."

Some 30 Catholic priests Sunday made a call from the pulpit for "peace, reconciliation, negotiation and discussion."

Whitest April on Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — As much as six inches of snow fell on elevated parts of Vancouver late Saturday and early Sunday, covering spring flowers and making this the snowiest April on record.

The weather office at Vancouver International airport recorded 1.4 inches of snow that fell at times in near-blizzard conditions.

The previous record for all of April was 0.9 inches, set in 1955.

The snow accompanied unseasonably cold weather which has resulted in record low temperatures across British Columbia.

The overnight lows Sunday slumped to 28 at Penticton and a chilly 25 at Kelowna under clear skies.

A new storm, moving down from Alaska, threatens to dump a mixture of rain and snow on the Greater Victoria area tonight.

Chief weather officer in Victoria, Allan McQuarrie, said most of the storm is expected to hit further south but described Victoria's position as "vulnerable."

On the other side of the country many Nova Scotians were digging out in the wake of a weekend storm that dumped between five and 15 inches of snow across the province and all but paralysed road traffic.

The weather office said skies should clear throughout the Atlantic region later today but another disturbance from the central United States is expected to bring more snow and rain to the district Tuesday night.

RCMP urged motorists to stay off highways.

The storm extended from Leduc, just south of Edmonton, to Olds, 45 miles north of Calgary, and reached its peak in the Red Deer-Innisfail area.

RCMP said visibility was to near zero and country roads east and west of Red Deer were blocked during the storm's 3½-hour thrust through the district. Light snow was still falling today but highway driving lanes were open.
